TREMORS ROCK KITIMAT

TERRACE (CP) — What appears to have been a series of earth tremors struck the Terrace-Kitimat area early today.

Reports indicate the activity was limited to shaking windows and walls, accompanied in some cases by a loud crash. People were thrown from their beds but there have been no reports of injuries.

At the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria, a seismologist said the tremors registered from 4.5 to 5 on the Richter scale, "below the level of any serious damage."

Seller Curbs Set

OTTAWA (UPI) — Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray today announced amendments to the Consumer Protection Act which offer more protection to consumers, including outlawing double ticketing and referral selling.

The changes represent the first stage in the government commitment to present a new competition policy. Following the recommendations from the food prices committee, the government separated the consumer aspects of the bill and brought them in first.

A second bill will follow later dealing with monopolies and mergers.

The new bill "strengthens and clarifies those sections of the present act dealing with misleading advertising. Specifically, it forbids the making of a misrepresentation to the public that is false or misleading in any material respect," a department statement said.

The general impression projected by the advertising could be considered, along with statements made by salesmen and any written statements going along with the product.

For the first time, provision is made for civil actions in the courts by anyone affected adversely by violations of the act.

The provision would allow the person to collect damages and costs.

Consumers will also receive added protection in the area of warranties and guarantees. The bill would make it an offence to make guarantees on performance or length of life of a product not based upon adequate tests.

Pyramid selling schemes which depend on each participant being able to recruit more participants, would be forbidden if there was any misrepresentation to new participants about the gains they "might reasonably be expected to receive."

Referral selling — the practice of offering buyers of a product a commission on further sales to persons whose names they supply — is banned completely by the bill.

Reds Kill Hijackers

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police stormed a Russian airliner on the tarmac at a Moscow airport and killed two of four young men attempting to hijack the plane to Sweden, government sources said Sunday.

The sources said the two other hijackers surrendered during the shootout which capped five hours of negotiations at the airport. One crewman and one of the 25 passengers were injured.

Soviet sources said the men threatened to kill all the passengers unless paid a ransom of between $500,000 to $1 million and allowed to fly in the jet to Sweden.

The attempted hijacking, the most spectacular in a series of aircraft seizures in the Soviet Union, took place Friday but did not become known until Sunday.

Threat of War Rumbles Again Over Mideast

Times News Services
The Middle East rumbled today with threats of a new war even as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger flew there on a mission of peace.

State-controlled Egyptian newspapers charged that Israel is planning "aggressive" actions against the Arabs and the semi-official Al Ahran said the situation was "explosive" along the ceasefire lines. Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said that Egypt had built up its troops to renew the war.

Diplomatic reports in London said the Soviet Union had resupplied Egypt and Syria to prewar levels and had pledged more up-to-date weapons in the event of a new outbreak of hostilities. The reports said Russia also had sent in Soviet experts to oversee the new buildup.

Egyptian infantry supported by tanks carried out four attacks along the Suez Canal ceasefire zone today but were beaten back, an Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv. He said Egypt had fully deployed its troops to attack positions all along the Suez front.

Col. Nachman Karni, the Israeli spokesman, said one of the Egyptian attacks today involved a series of infantry assaults that penetrated Israeli lines in the northern Sinai in six hours of fighting, and that tanks moved forward simultaneously.

OLYMPIC LOTTERY POT $1M

MONTREAL (CP) — A tax-free $1-million prize, believed one of the biggest jackpots offered for any lottery, will go to the winner of the Canada Olympic Lottery. And on the average, one out of every 100 ticket holders will win at least $100, it was announced at a news conference today.

The tickets will cost $10. Second and third prizes — six drawings are expected before the 1976 summer Olympic Games in Montreal end — will be $500,000 and $250,000 respectively.

Tickets will go on sale Dec. 5 with the first draw taking place April 15, 1974, before a country-wide television audience.

30 Held In Greek Protest

ATHENS (UPI) — Police arrested 30 persons Sunday in a bloody clash with demonstrators marching from a graveside memorial service for the late premier George Papandreu.

Thirty-two policemen and three demonstrators were injured.

A police spokesman said "about half" those arrested would stand trial on charges of failure to disperse, insulting authorities and resisting arrest.

He did not say whether the others would be tried or released.

The spokesman said five policemen were hospitalized, including one in serious condition with a concussion.

Witnesses said the clash began when police halted a crowd of several thousand persons marching from the cemetery toward the city centre near the ruins of the ancient temple of Zeus.

Witnesses said that when demonstrators began pelting police with stones, officers moved in with batons.

But Greek opposition leaders blamed the government for the clashes.

"I denounce the arrests that took place as the beginning of a new wave of persecution," said former premier Panayotis Kanellopoulos, who was present at the memorial service.

"Police could and should follow peaceful marchers and not confront them."

Further Arab Oil Cutbacks

KUWAIT (AP) — The Arab oil countries announced new production cuts today in their oil offensive against supporters of Israel but said "friendly" countries will not be affected. It was not known whether the action will affect Canada.

The 10-member Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) announced production will be reduced this month by 25 per cent of the output in September and by five per cent of the November output in December.

But the announcement after a seven-hour meeting of the group's oil ministers said the 25-per-cent reduction will include the oil already cut off by the embargos against the United States and the Netherlands. Since cuts in Arab oil production have reached more than four million barrels a day, or 20 per cent of the September production, it appeared that the new November cut actually will come to only five per cent, or one million barrels a day.

The cuts "shall not affect the share of those friendly countries that import oil from Arab countries," the statement said. "Their share will be based on the average of their imports for the first nine months of 1973."

The statement did not specify which countries were "friendly," but it was assumed this category includes France and Spain, which have been openly sympathetic with the Arab position against Israel.

Although what affect the latest action will have on Canada is unknown, the Saudi Arabian oil minister denied that his country has added Canada, South Africa and Trinidad to its embargo list as suggested by reports in Beirut and the U.S.

But the minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, added this warning: "If any other country re-exports to America or Holland what Saudi Arabia exports to it, then it will fall under our embargo."

The standing of Britain is uncertain, and the Arabs

Dutch Treat for Tots As Arab Oil Ban Hits

Times News Services

AMSTERDAM — The narrow cobble-stoned streets that meander alongside this city's network of canals ordinarily are choked with enough cars to keep an army of traffic cops working overtime. But Sunday most of Amsterdam's police could have taken the day off.

Under pressure of an oil boycott from the Arab countries, the Dutch government decreed a near total ban on Sunday driving. Since early Sunday morning the automobile — like a dinosaur fading suddenly into extinction — all but vanished from the streets and highways of Holland.

The children liked it best of all, flocking onto the near empty highways to play. Auto thieves, however, had their problems. Police said the only man to steal a car was quickly spotted and picked up.

Dutchmen walked, pedalled, took buses or just stayed home Sunday. The streets of Amsterdam, Rotterdam and the Hague were virtually empty of private automobiles and replaced by an assortment of conveyances such as bicycles, horses and skates.

Police reported only 18 drivers arrested by nightfall for violating the ban. Authorities said their cars were impounded and magistrates were expected to levy heavy fines.

The ministry of economics issued 20,000 exemptions to persons pleading special need, but police said the few cars on the road mainly belonged to foreigners who were exempt from the ban.

The cars were back today with blaring horns and belching exhausts. But, for a day at least, their normal hegemony over the streets was surrendered to the pedestrian and the bicyclist.

The effects of this change on an ultra-modern technologically advanced country like the Netherlands were perhaps underscored most vividly by an item in Sunday night's television news broadcast. It reported that the worst traffic accident of the day took place near Rotterdam when a horse-drawn carriage overturned injuring five persons.

Sunday was just the first in what everyone here suspects will be a long string of Sundays in learning how to live without the automobile. And the way in which the 13 million people of the Netherlands learn to cope with the situation is likely to have worldwide echoes.

WHAT IN THE WORLD persuaded these cyclists to force their machines through Victoria's snowy wastes during the weekend? The answer is on Page 3.

Resignation Cry Mounts

Times News Services

An embattled President Nixon remained in seclusion in Key Biscayne, Fla., today, apparently considering how to counter growing demands for his resignation.

While spokesmen said repeatedly that Nixon "has absolutely no intention of resigning," one source acknowledged that the small official party here concentrated much of its weekend thinking on the leadership crisis that has prompted a rash of public suggestions that the president step down.

Of immediate concern was the problem of countering public skepticism about White House claims that no recordings were made of key Nixon conversations last year for which tapes had been subpoenaed.

Ray S. Cline, a senior official of the state department, is resigning after 31 years in government because he feels he cannot work effectively in an administration hobbled by the Watergate scandals.

The resignation, which was to be submitted today, constitutes the first by a high-level state department official that is directly attributable to the malaise in government growing out of the continuing series of domestic crises.

Demands that Nixon resign came from publications, and politicians, including Republican Senator Edward Brooke of Massachusetts.

Brooke was the first Republican senator to call openly for Nixon's resignation.

Meanwhile, in its first editorial in its 50-year history, Time magazine said that Nixon has "irredeemably lost... his ability to govern effectively" and should resign.

Across the U.S., some newspapers called editorially for his resignation, while others continued to support Nixon.

Among those calling for him to step down were the New York Times, and the Detroit News, Denver Post and Atlanta Journal, three newspapers that had supported Nixon in the past as had Time.

Brooke said he "reluctantly came to the conclusion" that Nixon must resign because there was "no question Pres-

Havoc After Freak Snow

Records for temperature and snowfall toppled Sunday as British Columbia reeled under an early freak snowstorm.

At Gonzales the temperature fell to 30 while it was 25 degrees at the Victoria International Airport — the lowest temperature ever registered for Nov. 4.

All 21 B.C. temperature reporting stations reported all-time lows.

A snowfall of 2.7 inches was recorded at Gonzales. The previous record for the earliest measurable snow was 3 inches that fell Nov. 6 in 1902.

Snow was still falling today at Kelsey Bay, one of the hardest hit areas on Vancouver Island, piling up on the 18 inches that caused traffic chaos on Sunday.

There were long line-ups for the Mill Bay ferry all day Sunday as the Malahat was out of action with six inches of snow at the top and wind-whipped ice patches.

An RCMP spokesman said today "10 to 12 cars were slithered all over the highway and we had to close it down for about an hour."

Malahat Checks

Road checks were held at each end of the Malahat, only cars with snowtires or chains being allowed to go through. The same restrictions apply today.

A snow slide at Sutton Pass near Tofino on Sunday piled up traffic jams until the road was cleared.

Gold River and Campbell River lay under 14 inches of snow and Nahaimo had a six-inch fall. Snow plow and sanding crews were out today.

The northern part of Saanich was described as "a snow belt" today by a Saanich works official.

"We had everything out Sunday," he said, "one grader and five sanding trucks."

The lusty northeasterlies that lashed Vancouver Island Saturday and Sunday plagued B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone crews with an over-all rash of emergencies.

Crews Working

Hydro crews were still working on Saturna, Pender and Salt Spring Islands today, having worked all through the night. Crews answered emergency calls all over the Greater Victoria area all through Sunday.

At the peak of the emergency 50 B.C. Telephone men were on the job installation crews being brought in to augment the trouble-shooting staff.

In spite of conditions, there were no serious traffic incidents although "fender-benders" kept police busy in many areas.

Tires in Demand

Local tire dealers were working round the clock today as drivers rushed to winterize their cars.

"It's a big, big day," said a Victoria Tire Ltd. spokesman. "We're busy as a bat."

Eric Bennett, manager of D and D Tires, said, "We were busy Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Today, of course, is panic day."

Woodward's tire department was "going like crazy," a spokesman said.

Dealers are anticipating shortages in many snow tire sizes.

An OK Tire spokesman said this year's rush is worse than in previous years and shortages could become critical by the end of the week.

He said rubber companies had been unable to produce enough tires because rail strikes had held up supplies of raw materials.

Winds gusted up to 53 miles an hour at the peak of Saturday's storm — the first gale of the season — and still ranged as high as 31 on Sunday.

Warming conditions are expected to help clear island roads today although wet snow is still a possibility in the Greater Victoria area.

Showers can be expected Tuesday — or snow if the temperature is low enough.

New York Firemen Vote to Strike

By The Canadian Press

New York City firemen voted today to begin a "total strike" at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday if a contract is not agreed upon by then.

The state National Guard was called up at 9 a.m. today, in defiance of a state law prohibiting strikes by municipal employees. But when the strike deadline came, negotiations were still in progress and the firefighters came to work normally.

Later, at a meeting of the Uniformed Firefighters Association, the new strike deadline was noted.

In Britain, more than 100,000 workers have staged a 24-hour walkout.

Strikes also affected publication of two United States newspapers — the New York Daily News and the Washington Post.

In New York, Mayor John Lindsay joined contract negotiations involving mediators, city officials and leaders of the 10,900-member Uniformed Firefighters Association.

Firemen have demanded a $2,000 increase in their current base pay of $14,300 a year. A union official said he and other officials would ignore a judge's order to appear at a hearing today on an order to bar any walkout.

About 1,400 members of the New York Newspaper Guild went on strike against The Daily News.

The Washington Post, a morning newspaper, planned to publish an edition after the day after a work stoppage by union printers prevented publication Saturday and Sunday.

All Trans World Airlines domestic flights were grounded by a flight attendant strike that began at midnight Sunday night. Meanwhile, a 15-day strike ended at International Harvester Co. facilities in 11 U.S. states.

Italian hospital doctors on a three-day country-wide strike left patients at 1,500 hospitals without assistance. They are protesting a request by hospital administrations to increase weekly working hours to 36 from 30.

HYDRO PACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 2,400 British Columbia Hydro workers have accepted a new contract offer of a 20 per cent wage increase spread over two years.

The workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 269, agreed to the settlement in a referendum ballot counted Saturday.

Final voting figures were not immediately available.

Officials of the local had recommended acceptance of a tentative agreement reached Oct. 12 between negotiators for the union and the provincial crown corporation.

MALE BODY IN HARBOR

Victoria police are investigating the death of a man whose body was discovered floating in the Inner Harbor at the foot of Fort Street, shortly before 9 a.m. today.

Police refused to identify the man or say where he was last seen, pending notification of next of kin.

Victoria General Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walther, who examined the body, said it was badly decomposed and police indicated the man was last seen about the end of September.

"There was nothing on cursory examination to suggest any obvious foul play," said Walther.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said he is awaiting further details from police before deciding whether to order an inquest.

Police refused to say how far from the shore the body was found or who discovered it.

Steel Layoffs Feared

By AL FORREST

Times Staff

Many construction companies face bankruptcy if they are forced by pay higher prices for steel in the middle of a contract, British Columbia Construction Association president Wayne Farmer said today.

A lay-off of thousands of construction employees across the province was a possibility as well, Farmer said.

He said Western Canada Steel Company has refused to deliver steel to fulfill contracts with contractors unless there is a sharp increase in price.

"Our information is that the increase they want could cost as much as $100,000 for some projects already under way. Nobody can absorb costs like that."

Farmer agreed with officials of Western Canada Steel who said Friday there is no shortage of steel in B.C.

"The issue is the price and the sanctity of a contract," Farmer said.

He said there is no precedent for a company refusing to fulfill a contract in the construction industry.

Present price is 18 cents per pound, up over 100 per cent from 7 to 8 cents just over a year ago, Farmer said.

"The rumor is they want 28 cents a pound before they will deliver any more steel. We

Macdonald Widens Rift With Alta.

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — There was no cooling off in the Ottawa-Alberta oil battle over the weekend with Energy Minister Donald Macdonald widening the split by lobbing additional verbal blasts Sunday at Premier Peter Lougheed and his Progressive Conservative government in Edmonton.

Senator Donald Cameron, from Banff, Alberta, an Independent Liberal in the Upper House, volunteered his services to try to bring about a reconciliation.

He spoke with Premier Lougheed late Friday urging that Alberta's government resume talks with Ottawa.

"I think it is an impossible situation with the Alberta government refusing to talk any more with the federal minister concerned. I told the premier I would well understand the frustrations felt by his ministers. I suggested that he deal directly with Prime Minister Trudeau.

"But at this stage the premier is very hostile to Ottawa. He told me that the Alberta government has now had its fingers burned twice by Macdonald, and just doesn't trust him anymore. He was in no mood Friday to make any move towards establishing contact with Ottawa," said the senator in an interview Sunday.

Sen. Cameron said that information he has received from other sources, information that is borne out by reports coming out of Alberta, indicates that Alberta might be willing to resume negotiations if Macdonald was kept out of the picture.

The Alberta government would probably be willing to talk with Trudeau and with Finance Minister John Turner, according to word the senator has received. However he made it clear that he did not get that from the premier.

The feud between Alberta and Ottawa reached the breaking point Friday. It followed the federal government's announcement Thursday that there would be a four-fold increase in the federal oil export tax.

Macdonald, Sunday, voiced strong criticism of the Alberta government in a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national radio program. He lambasted the premier and Inter-governmental Affairs Minister Don Getty for breaking off negotiations.

Senator Cameron said he was shocked by Macdonald's words. No Alberta government minister would take part in the program.

"This is an impossible situation. It is unbelievable really that we have Alberta and Ottawa now firing verbal volleys at one another through the press and over the radio," said Cameron. "This is far too serious an energy situation to have the province and Ottawa not talking."

"There has to be a restoration of relations between the two. I know the premier personally and asked if there was anything I could do to help restore those relations. The premier was adamant that he felt they could not continue negotiating with the energy minister, and I don't blame him in a way," said Senator Cameron.

He pointed out that Macdonald keeps pointing to the needs of the millions of consumers in eastern Canada. He said the minister from Toronto conveniently overlooks the fact that for years the government at Ottawa has not been overly concerned about the millions of consumers in the west.

... MIDDLE EAST

The official Iraqi news agency predicted, that Kissinger's tour would produce no tangible results and reported from Cairo, "There is a belief in the Egyptian capital that fighting between the Arab countries and Israel may be resumed at any moment."

Kissinger seemed jovial and relaxed as he boarded a plane for Morocco, first stop on a round-the-world tour that will take him to four Middle East Moslem capitals en route to China and Japan. He told newsmen "I am always optimistic" when asked if he thought his trip would produce a settlement.

Kissinger had carried out almost nonstop negotiations for the past four days with Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Syrian and Egyptian envoys. He was stopping off in Morocco, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia before continuing to China.

Mrs. Meir returned to Tel Aviv today from nearly a week in Washington and said some questions on U.S. policy in settling the Middle East conflict still were unanswered. Critics on the left and right have criticized her handling of the war and said Israel's military and political strategy failed to anticipate the conflict.

On arrival at Lod International Airport she said "both the answer we received and the questions which remained without answer on our side or without answers from their side" during her Washington consultations will be reported to the government for "conclusions and decisions." She is to address parliament on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, 11 Canadians

left Sunday for Cairo to determine what kind of support the UN Emergency Force will require.

The group was led by Brig-Gen. D. S. Nicholson of Cornwall, Ont., who will report directly to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on the requirements of the force which is expected to number about 7,000 men. Canada is to contribute men to the force but it is not yet known how many Canadians will be involved.

The U.S. Air Force delivered 70 F-4s from Helsinki to Cairo Sunday for the UN peace-keeping force along the Suez canal, and U.S. planes were scheduled to take in 134 F-4s today and Tuesday. Soviet planes were reported flying another 300 F-4s to Cairo today or Tuesday, which would swell the force to about 1,500 men.

ident Nixon has lost his effectiveness as a leader of this country, mainly because he has lost the confidence of the people of this country.

"And I think therefore in the interest of this nation that he loves, that he should step down, should tender his resignation," Brooke said.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, maintained its harsh new attitude toward Nixon Sunday with fresh comment censuring him for his behavior during the Middle East crisis and "fantastic inventions" about Russian intentions.

The Communist Party daily newspaper Pravda, in its weekly review of world affairs, stopped short of naming President Nixon but directly attacked his actions, including the recent full alert of U.S. armed forces.

In Washington, federal prosecutors said today that former White House counsel John Dean has admitted discovering and destroying materials from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt late in January after Hunt pleaded guilty to the Watergate bugging.

Richard Ben-Veniste, a lawyer for the Watergate special prosecution force, said Dean told government investigators that he shredded two of Hunt's notebooks and tossed a "pop-up address book" into a wastebasket.

Ben-Veniste said the materials—which Dean said he did not read—consisted of the address book and two cloth-bound notebooks that Dean said he "assumed" related to the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Dean has testified publicly he turned over all the material from Hunt's safe to the FBI with the exception of "political dynamite" documents that he gave to then-acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray.

Attorney-General-designate William Saxbe today denied advocating destruction of the White House Watergate tapes if they proved to be incriminating.

He was quoted by the Hong Kong Standard on Aug. 23 as saying during a speech to the local chapter of the American Chamber of Commerce:

"I think the president is right on standing on his rights not to release the tapes. I personally wish I had never heard of the tapes. If they're incriminating, they should be destroyed, and I'm sure they will; but I think he's right in saying that a president cannot be horsed around in the courts."

Saxbe, nominated last week by President Nixon to head the justice department, issued this statement:

"If the question is, was I advocating any illegal activity in the Hong Kong speech, the answer obviously is no. In response to a question after the Hong Kong speech, I indicated that if there was illegal activity recorded on the tapes, I questioned whether such tapes would ever be forthcoming."

Japanese Science Visit Set

A six-member Japanese science and technology mission will visit Victoria Nov. 15 during a 10-day visit to Canada which begins Tuesday.

Dr. Sus Tabata of the department of environment's marine sciences branch reports the mission is a follow-up to the Canadian science mission of which he was a member when it visited Japan in March 1972. The Canadian mission was headed by Alastair Gillespie, then minister of state for science and technology.

The Japanese mission, led by Shun Yasuo, science councillor of the Japanese science and technology agency, will also visit Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal.

Pressure Off

Officers and cadets of the RCSC Rainbow have raised $7,500 for their organization through a 20-mile walkathon held Oct. 21.

Major F. W. Conconi said today the cadets have been working under "critical financial pressure" for the past year and that pressure has now been relieved.

the weather

"Temperatures were quite cold throughout B.C. overnight with record lows for the date being set at a number of stations. Skies were nearly clear across the central province but other areas were mostly overcast. Snow fell throughout the night in the southeastern interior while other southern areas had at least a few snowflurries. This cold unsettled weather will persist in some areas through Tuesday. Drier northeasterly winds have developed in mainland inlets and valleys on the south coast. Consequently, a clearing trend is now expected to continue on the lower mainland today."

COUNTERFEITING RING OPERATED IN PEN

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Tom Ellis, director of the Saskatchewan penitentiary here, said today a counterfeit operation has been uncovered at the penitentiary's farm annex.

Ellis said the counterfeiting operation, which apparently involved "one or two people," was discovered following an investigation.

Penitentiary equipment was not used in the counterfeiting process, he added, but declined to reveal any further details.

They Call It Fun

Knock-em-down, drag-em-out race called Cyclo-Cross was held Sunday in the hills, mud, snow, potholes and bumps of Cuthbert Holmes Park, Trans-Canada Highway at Burnside.

Wheelers' Bicycle Club and when the mud was scraped off the winner turned out to be Stuart Cox of Victoria. Joe Hailey of Vancouver was a close second.

Eire Puts Out Plea For More Soldiers

DUBLIN (UPI) — The Irish Republic began a recruiting campaign Monday to strengthen security forces along the Northern Ireland border.

The recruiting drive is part of Premier Liam Cosgrave's reaction to the growing militancy of IRA members, who sometimes hide out in Eire after terrorist operations in Northern Ireland.

It is also an answer to the sensational helicopter escape from a Dublin prison by three IRA leaders last week.

At least 1,000 extra troops will be recruited for duties along the 200-mile border, a spokesman for the defence forces said.

At a news conference Sunday, Defence Minister Patrick Donegan said the current Irish army of 14,000 was at least 3,500 men under strength.

"We want to achieve the establishment level as soon as possible," he said.

An army spokesman said a new military barracks would be built near the border town of Monaghan and other border camps would be enlarged.

In Belfast, British officers said they feared the escape of the three IRA men would spur a new IRA offensive in Ulster.

"This escape was bitterly disappointing, a real setback for us, and likely to lead to a step-up in IRA operations in the north," a British officer said.

"We expect one or more of them will return to Belfast to build up the provisional organization here we have hurt so badly in recent months."

The escaped trio were Seamus Twomey, former provisional IRA chief of staff, Joe O'Hagan, and Kevin Mallon, two other veteran provisional leaders.

Vietnam Border Posts Fall to Red Advances

SAIGON (UPI) — A column of tank-led Communist troops captured two government outposts Sunday near the Cambodian border, the Saigon command said today, and all 29 men aboard a government transport plane carrying reinforcements to the battlesite died when the aircraft crashed.

The twin battles were the biggest armored clashes since the signing of the Vietnam ceasefire nine months ago. The air crash was the worst in nearly eight months in Vietnam.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said there was no word on casualties in the ground fighting. He said he expected they would be heavy on both sides.

Meanwhile, government troops recaptured a riverfront town on the outskirts of Phnom Penh today in heavy fighting three days after it fell to guerrillas.

Field reporters said Cambodian soldiers marched into the town of Prek Luong, four miles northeast of Phnom Penh, at daybreak following a night of battles with the Communist-led Khmer Rouge insurgents.

Vancouver Pollution Uncertain

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two pollution experts agreed Saturday the levels of air pollution in Vancouver are hard to determine because there is a lack of air testing equipment.

Dr. Kenneth Denike, a geography professor at the University of B.C., and Andrew Lynch, chief chemist for the water resources service, made the comment following a pollution symposium.

Dr. Denike said scientists have not been able to establish a pollution pattern for the city because of a shortage of equipment to analyse the air.

"We need at least eight or nine more stations around Vancouver which will probably cost about $500,000. Until we get these we won't be able to establish a real pattern which we need to plan for the future," he said.

Worthy Project on the Brink

For nearly seven years a brilliant concept in housing and activities for handicapped persons has been evolving in Saanich. In recent months, on the Vernon Avenue site near the Saanich Municipal Hall, part of the projected complex has taken shape. Townhouses and an apartment building have been raised; another apartment and a hostel are planned with clear sailing ahead. These facilities will especially cater to handicapped individuals and couples, aged persons and other deserving categories. They have been built with generous contributions from government funds, since housing is recognized as an emergency item in our present era.

But the building that will tie the whole plan together, that is in fact the central reason for the whole idea, remains unconstructed and in danger of losing the progress it already has made.

This is the activity centre, in which the residents of the immediate housing complex and of other parts of the community will be able to meet for training, for recreation, for nursing services, for education, for meals, for use of a sheltered workshop, for therapy and other benefits.

The centre will enable many services at present scattered around the community to be brought together for better and more economic operation. It will provide an environment in which persons needing help may receive it and be encouraged to participate in many of the activities which are the privilege of more fortunate people. It will help to tie community and handicapped together for the benefit of both. It will offer large accommodation for these activities, as well as offices and smaller quarters for administration and special purposes.

It will help persons who cannot face the competitive environment of the world, and also those who are about to launch into it. In a word, it will be one of the most active, progressive, forward-looking institutions in this community and a shining example to other places of what can be done by local initiative accompanied by government aid. At least eight existing organizations will regularly use the premises, and no doubt others will join them.

The cost of the activity centre, at the core of the housing complex now rising, is estimated at $955,000. Of this sum, $655,000 is already in hand. The province of B.C. contributed $300,000; the Community Chest (from the T.S. McPherson estate) $100,000; the Multiple Sclerosis Society, sponsored by the Cosmos Club, $100,000; the Greater Victoria Municipalities $100,000; and private contributions $55,000.

The shortfall is $300,000, and it has been the hope of the organizers over the past few years that this amount could be received from the federal government to make the plan a reality. So far, unfortunately, Ottawa has not seen fit to participate in the building since apparently there is no specialized fund earmarked for this purpose. Ironically, the federal government helped substantially with the housing, and will contribute generously to the operation of the activity centre once it is built.

Efforts are still being made through Urban Affairs Minister Basford and Health and Welfare Minister Lalonde, to find the needed $300,000. Naturally, such a sum cannot be readily lifted out of some other appropriation; there must be a permissible source. But so many millions these days are being spent on passing fancies, trivial enterprises, relatively unproductive gambits, that the local activity centre for the handicapped stands out as a beacon of sanity in government spending. Particularly when it has been so well supported by local funds, it is frustrating to be so close to fruition without winning the essential federal help.

Unfortunately, some of the locally committed money cannot be held indefinitely for the centre; if construction cannot be undertaken soon the funds may have to be switched to some other project. For this reason the appeal to Ottawa has now taken on an urgency even greater than before.

Ottawa, please take a close look at this one. It's right in line with federal policy, local effort and human need. And it's away out here in the West.

Holding Down the Airlines

In the 1930s Canada was fortunate to have a national airline. Trans-Canada Air Lines' little two-engine Locheeds were another tenuous link which held the country together from Halifax to Victoria, giving it a sense of community. Even now the stylized maple leaf on a high swept back tail is a comforting sight for Canadians, especially in a foreign airport.

But Canada is no longer an empty country with a struggling airline. Air Canada is among the world's largest air carriers flying to Moscow and other exotic places.

On domestic runs it is often necessary to book well ahead to get weekend return flights. In a sense the government-owned airline is "the only game in town" on many national runs. Canadian Pacific Airlines plus a few regional carriers pick up the slack, and for the most part, their routes and departure times are ones which Air Canada can do without.

This all leads up to the fact that Pacific Western Airlines — a burgeoning regional carrier — has been turned down, after a 15-month wait, by the Department of Transport in a bid for an Edmonton-Vancouver flight via Kelowna. The reason for refusal: the flight would constitute undue competition with the transcontinental carriers.

In a land of relatively free enterprise the refusal is difficult to understand on grounds of competition. If any regional carrier can live up to safety and equipment standards set by the DOT why should it not be allowed to compete with the older well-established airlines? Competition is the life of our free-enterprise system.

The Struggle Buddha Won

HUHEHOT, Inner Mongolia — In 1570 a shrewd Chinese statesman named Wan Chun-hu sent a memorandum to Emperor Lung Ching suggesting that the way to handle the menace of the war-like Mongolians to the north was by converting them to Buddhism.

Buddhism had already been introduced to the Mongols even before their great king, Kublai Khan, overran China and established the short-lived Yuan Dynasty, which ruled a great Chinese empire. During the Yuan period lamas from this vast prairie land used to study in distant Tibet but most Mongols preferred their heathen shaman rites.

Therefore, Wan, fearing their fierce cavalry, counselled Emperor Lung: "Buddhism forbids bloodshed, prescribes confession, recommends a virtuous life; for this reason we should do our utmost to diffuse that faith among the nomads."

His advice was accepted. The policy of the Ming and succeeding Ching emperors was to propagate the Buddhist ideology much as the Communist ideology has been propagated here since Mao Tse-tung's army assumed control of Inner Mongolia in 1947.

State Religion

Lamaism became Mongolia's state religion. Potential warriors became celibate monks, each family being forced to contribute sons to monasteries. Population declined and a later chronicler wrote: "There is no need to light a watch-fire on the boundaries of China."

The Mongols retained the written language established by their great medieval tyrant, Genghis Khan, but they became politically divided. Finally in 1921 the northern part of this sparsely populated but immense area declared itself the Outer Mongolian People's Republic, an outright satellite of Moscow.

The Mongols in China were subjected to different local administrations. Only 26 years ago the Autonomous Region of Inner Mongolia, of which this is the capital, was established under Peking. Even today there are more Chinese Mongolians (1.6 million) outside this Autonomous Region than in it (420,000).

The Mongolians here have undoubtedly been favored and their population has more than doubled from 180,000 in 1947. Nevertheless, during the same time, officials here say the total number of inhabitants in the Autonomous Region has grown from 3,160,000 to 8 million.

The Mongolians are no longer responsive to lamaism. Indeed, of ten Buddhist monasteries listed as extant in a guidebook compiled during the nineteen-sixties, only a portion of one remains — the five-towered pagoda of Wu ta si, a lovely little structure with Tibetan and Mongolian inscriptions. The others have been razed or remodelled for other purposes. Not one lama is left.

However, the new faith of Communism has preserved a favored position for the Mongolians, honoring their phonetic language on a parity with Chinese and guaranteeing them 18 per cent representation on all administrative bodies.

They are being converted from their nomadic life in yurts (felt tents) to settled existence in houses. Plague and syphilis, two previous curses, have been eliminated. Thirteen thousand rudimentary "horseback doctors" tend a pastoral clientele in addition to town physicians.

At the University of Inner Mongolia, Chingtel, director of the Mongolian language department, told me the stress on national history was now laid on a twentieth-century Mongol revolutionary named Simlania but acknowledged that, despite his "class defects" and aggressiveness, Genghis Khan had been a "great" man who unified this people.

Their language is honored in every respect. I saw Mongolian girls and boys in university classes wearing lovely silk robes rather than drab Chinese dungaree-type costumes. They rule the grasslands with the close-coupled, long-maned little horses they ride so marvellously. They have been considerably industrialized. Their livestock population has quadrupled since Communism took over. Their summer horseback festival of Nadamu is the year's great event. Their excellent cuisine, music, dance and folklore are carefully fostered.

People Thriving

There seems not the slightest reason to believe the population of Inner Mongolia pays much heed to or is attracted by the anti-Peking propaganda beamed here from Outer Mongolia. The people are thriving and on a historically rising wave such as they have not experienced in centuries. Nevertheless, the only obvious trouble is that, coddled and protected as they are, the Mongolians of the Chinese People's Republic comprise less than 3 per cent of the entire population and the Mongols are No. 8 in size on the list of national minorities.

If one considers that in just over a quarter century, while the Mongol population of this Autonomous Region grew by 240,000 while the Chinese population grew by almost 5 million, one does not need to know Mongolian to read the handwriting of history on a fragmented lamaery wall.

The Nixon Future—If Any

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon has lost more friends and his influence has continued to wane during the last week of new twists and turns in the Watergate case.

There is actually more talk now of persuading the president to resign than there is of his impeachment by Congress.

The president has lost the support of some of his Republican allies in Congress and it appears that the confirmation of vice-presidential nominee Gerald Ford is being speeded up so that he could, if necessary, take over the presidency.

Even the president's few friends in the news media are diminishing, with hard-line columnist Joseph Alsop the latest to call for Nixon's resignation.

It was a bad week for Nixon, despite his efforts to establish a new team to handle investigations into the Watergate affair and other allegations of improper conduct on his part.

Bad Taste

The appointment of Leon Jaworski as new special prosecutor did not wash away the bad taste left by Nixon's firing of Archibald Cox, especially as Jaworski is being given the same sort of powers as Cox had and an even better guarantee of tenure.

Nixon also appointed Senator William B. Saxbe of Ohio as his nominee for attorney-general to replace Elliot Richardson. If confirmed by Congress, Saxbe would be Nixon's fifth attorney-general since 1969. But even Saxbe's nomination, while fairly popular, was bungled, because the White House apparently was unaware of a constitutional snag involving a technical matter of salary which will require special remedial legislation.

But all this was overshadowed by the fiasco of the missing tapes: Nixon's credibility, in the words of Republican Senator Barry Goldwater, reached "an all-time low from which he may never be able to recover."

Explanations of why there were no tape recordings of two presidential conversations crucial to Watergate evidence were confusing and unconvincing. Witnesses appearing before Judge John Sirica gave conflicting stories and raised more questions than they answered.

The destruction of documents that might be evidence is not without precedent in the case as earlier testimony has disclosed. The way in which the White House tapes were handled throughout seems to have been incredibly sloppy.

Partial logs, some of them on scraps of brown paper grocery bags, were kept

The upshot is that many people are skeptical about the whole thing.

Even the offer of a memo claimed to have been dictated by Nixon after one of the conversations with former counsel John W. Dean, is unlikely to allay this skepticism.

Whether by design or sheer bungling, Nixon has got himself into a corner from which many people might be tempted to escape by resignation.

Presidential spokesman Gerald Warren Friday responded somewhat testily to this idea, saying that the president "will not resign." That's what Spiro Agnew said, too. But it is difficult to imagine someone of Nixon's character and attitude giving up the presidency.

Unhappy Time

If he does not, however, his remaining time in office is bound to be unhappy. Although Nixon feels he has an overwhelming mandate because of his landslide election victory last year, it is questionable whether he could actually count on those votes now, a year later.

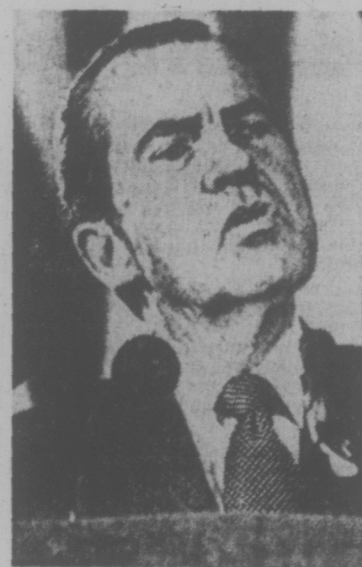

The tide of public opinion makes itself felt in the waves that reach members of Congress, who always maintain very close links to their constituents.

The force of that tide is evident in the remarks of members who had been Nixon supporters. They are turning away from him in droves, especially those who will be seeking re-election next year.

"You get tired of sticking your neck out and having it chopped off," remarked Senator Robert Dole, of Kansas, who is one of those running in the mid-term elections.

The president is bound to find his future dealings with a disillusioned Congress even more difficult than they have been.

Meanwhile Nixon himself sped away, without telling anyone in advance, to his Key Biscayne home in Florida for a long weekend. When he returns, the long, long serial will be continued. Future episodes are totally unpredictable.

PRESIDENT NIXON

of who had taken them from secret service custody, but sometimes there was no record at all.

Some people apparently heard some of the tapes, including Nixon, and at one point it was thought that these included at least one of the recordings which the White House now claims was never made because the tape ran out. Earlier, the explanation was that there had been a "malfunction" but this story was changed.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Bilingual

Observations on your paper of Thursday, October 25:

1. Le Centre Socio-Culturel Francois de Victoria has been formed in our city. We hope this sort of thing is going on also in Quebec so that the French speaking may learn to speak English. It is also noted the above Society is hoping for a federal grant. There seems to be a lot of pushing of the French language in our province in the past while. It is hoped the reverse is taking place in Quebec.

2. Amarjit Hundal and his Tigers walked off the field recently and are prepared to pull out of the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association, charging discrimination. I hope a compromise can be made and these valuable players remain in the league.—Concerned.

Admired

As a frequent visitor to the Legislature gallery I have watched with great interest and admiration the performances of MLA David Broussan.

Although I am not a Liberal I have admired his thought for those less fortunate than himself and for the best interests of the province, and of course I refer to his valiant efforts on behalf of those who were being taken for a ride by unscrupulous mortgage agents, and his great fight to try and avoid the flooding of the Skagit Valley. He showed great skill in presenting his case and, in my view, he will be greatly missed in the Legislature as there are few of his stature in that Assembly.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar Ave.

Evil Genius

I wonder who was, or is ... if he is still alive ... the evil genius that invented the Canadian hodge-podge postal code. How is it that the U.S.A., with ten times our population, can get along with a simple, five digit code while we have to struggle with a mixture of letters and numbers? Who can ever remember such a clumsy combination? I winced every time I have to write it down.

When the rest of the world strives for simplicity, Canada goes out of its way to promote complexity ... whether it be the income tax forms, postal code, or what have you.—Volodimir Barabash, 232 Pembina St., New Westminster, B.C.

And All That

Regarding early retirement, has it occurred to the premier of British Columbia and other "do-gooders", that the man who finds no interest in his job is unlikely to find anything constructive to do in his leisure time either. He is likely to find enforced idleness a far worse thing than enforced work, and the police to find another age category of criminals, because idleness breeds crime.

Further, when the man of the house retires, the lady does not. She still has all her old chores to do and the man underfoot also. Surely Mr. Barrett must respect Women's Lib, and should provide every housewife at 60 with government-paid domestic service, with breakfast in bed and all that.—J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer St.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 5, 1913

Protests have been received by the minister of labor from Vancouver Island mine owners against an arbitration board to settle the difficulties between the companies and their employees.

They point out that the strike has now been in progress for 18 months, that the mines are in operation and that the men are no longer in the employ of the companies. They also point out that the Lemieux Act does not apply to disputes after a strike is declared, but can only be called into effect to settle pending strikes. So far no application for a board has been received by the minister, and he has notified the mine owners to that effect.

Torture Use 'Epidemic' World-Wide

By JEAN-PIERRE CLAVEL

(Clavel is one of the contributors to the Amnesty International Report on Torture to be published this fall. This is an excerpt from an article in The Canadian Forum.)

Torture is no longer a camp-follower kept for the dark moments of war; it is now identifiable as an administrative policy in more than 30 countries.

A new litany has arisen, voice upon voice, in courtrooms, in smuggled letters, in United Nations reports: "I was taken to an office in the police headquarters and lighted matches were held against my body" . . . "When someone gave the word, the machine was switched on and I started to feel excruciating pain" . . . "My client retracts his confession and deposition which were made under torture" . . . "The next day my lips were covered with dried blood" . . .

Thus rises the chorus of a drama enacted over four of the world's five continents and on whose periphery stands Canada like an unblinking witness.

Jean-Paul Sartre's warning at the height of the Algerian War is now fact: "Disavowed—sometimes very quietly—but systematically practiced behind a facade of democratic legality, torture has acquired the status of a semi-clandestine institution."

One need only consider the tragedy of modern Greece where, carefully cloistered from the turquoise skies and the ruins of the Acropolis, the colonels' victims are seized and broken. It is now five years since the junta seized power, since the first mass arrests and the first public reports that the falanga (severe beating on the soles of the feet) had replaced law in the "cradle of democracy."

Greece Refuses to Mend Ways

World alarm over the re-emergence of torture as a state instrument in Greece led the Council of Europe in 1969 to investigate the accumulating allegations. The hearings constituted, in effect, the most significant international trial since Nuremberg. A special commission investigated 23 cases of falanga, 4 cases of electric shock and 38 cases ranging from mock-execution to severe beating. Almost 250 other cases where such treatment was alleged could not be investigated for a variety of reasons.

The commission, in its now historic deliberations, found that grievous violations of human rights, including torture, has been perpetrated by the Athens Security Police. Far more disturbing, however, was the fact that Greece abruptly withdrew from the Council of Europe, thereby admitting its guilt and blatantly refusing to mend its ways.

The international response to the events in Greece highlights what an increasing number of political analysts have come to describe as a world epidemic: not only has the practice of torture become a routine paramilitary technique, but evidence of its increasing sophistication has revealed the existence of a grim social science with its own research facilities, specialists and apologists.

To expose and halt this epidemic, Amnesty International has, for the past year, been engaged in a special investigative research project to sift through the mass of torture allegations from around the world and bring the truth about this situation to the foreground of international concern. During the investigation of some 140 nations, the research unit has received complaints that torture is being used systematically in 69 of them and this has already been verified in 32 cases. Only 26 of the countries seem to be free of it. Even in the context of skyjackings, bombings and assassinations, it is a startling revelation.

Incidents of torture are no longer restricted to overtly racial or colonial situations. By the late sixties torture was virtually synonymous with political control in a score of countries.

From Greek prisons came letters smuggled out by intellectuals, trade unionists and students describing the falanga; from Con Son in Vietnam came evidence of Tiger Cages and their crippled, untried inmates; from Iran came reports of the "toasting table"; out of the Soviet Union came appeals from political dissenters confined to psychiatric hospitals; South African authorities were trying to explain away the deaths of suspects in interrogation centres.

This wave of torture appears to have been virtually unchecked. With the eruption of civil disorder in Northern Ireland came revelations of "sensory deprivation" techniques used to disorient Irish Republican Army suspects.

Subjected to High-Pitched Noise

Here, seemingly "humane" methods had striking effects, subjected to painfully loud, high-pitched "white noise" while being forced to stand in a fatiguing position dressed in a "boiler suit." By allowing the suspects' own nervous systems to "torture themselves," remarkably high levels of stress and anxiety were generated in a short space of time.

Such technical sophistication is a common characteristic indicated by evidence now leaking out of interrogation centres throughout the world.

In a particularly gory Report on Allegations of Torture in Brazil, released last year, Amnesty International cited the testimony of French legal expert, Georges Pinet: "Scientific research, in which doctors must necessarily have participated, have made it possible to identify the maximum suffering that the various systems of the body can endure without resulting in death."

Pinet reported that Brazilian suspects were being subjected to "sophisticated" treatment for several days: unbearable noises, such as the sounds of jet engines, screams of terror, deafening and nerve-shattering music and flashing

Fevered Mind, Cool Thoughts

By JOHN NICHOL

This has been a very confusing few weeks. But I am glad to report that I have had the galloping Upper Canada flu. It's a terrible thing for a Westerner to be trapped, sick, in Toronto. But I have been able to stare at the ceiling and think clearly under the invigorating influences of aspirin and hot rum.

Let's begin with the Middle East. The Arabs attacked Israel so that Israel wouldn't attack first. The Arabs wanted the Sinai Desert back. Since the archeologists took away the Dead Sea scroll, there is nothing left in the Sinai Desert, so neither Israel nor Egypt really wanted it. But Israel needs it as a buffer zone against Egypt. Egypt wants it because she is desperately short of sand.

So when the Egyptians tried to take the Sinai, the Israelis crossed the canal and tried to take Egypt. Thus the stage was set for a cease-fire which both sides wanted before the first shot was fired.

The cease-fire itself was organized by the Russians and the Americans which was logical, since Russia supplied all the arms to the Arabs as the Americans did to Israel. In fact, as President Nixon put it, if he had not alerted the U.S. Forces around the world war, or worse, would have broken out. During the cease-fire negotiations both the super powers were flying in weapons to both sides. After all, how can you stop a war unless there is one in progress?

And now — about President Nixon. For months, he would not give up the famous tape recordings of his conversations about Watergate. He said that he wouldn't give up the tapes because someone might have said something that would destroy the power of the presidency. Not just of his presidency but the power of presidents yet unborn — like the great-grandson of Walter Cronkite. But at the same time he said he knew that there was nothing on the tapes that would really help much. Now he has surrendered the tapes, and that's logical. If no one hears the tapes how can the people know that he was right in the first place to refuse to give up the tapes because people might misunderstand what was on them? Or have I got that backwards?

Of course, Nixon had to fire his Special Prosecutor, Archibald Cox. The President wanted to appoint a new Special Prosecutor with "independence, and total co-operation from the executive branch." So — how can he appoint a new Prosecutor when he already had an old one with the same power? He had to fire one of them, and he couldn't fire the one who had not been appointed yet — so Cox had to go. Who will the new one be? It's a tough problem. I bet Nixon wishes that John Wayne was a law professor.

The energy crisis used to confuse me too, but flu causes heat to rise in the brain and as Mr. Nixon might say — the hotter it gets, the cooler I get. The energy crisis is simple. Canada has hesitated to build pipe lines from the Arctic because they would wreck the cultures of the native peoples of the north, distort the value of the Canadian dollar, and disturb the caribou.

However, everything is now in hand. We have put television into the Arctic so that the native peoples can watch the Wonderful World of Disney. The purchasing power of the Canadian dollar shrinks hourly. And as the citizens of Toronto shiver around their luke-warm furnaces this winter, it will perhaps be some consolation for them to know that the caribou remain undisturbed. In that, he is unique.

Blindfolded North Vietnamese prisoner en route to 'interrogation centre' lights combined with thirst, cold and hunger — all orchestrated to generate delirium. In one instance, closed-circuit television alternated photos of the victim's family with approaching high-speed trains in a non-stop McLuhanesque death threat.

Nor are such grotesque methods limited to Brazil. Out of the hundreds of affidavits and court testimonies alleging and condemning contemporary torture practices emerges a rather macabre fact: two categories of medical specialist vie for the dubious honor of archinquisitor — the pharmacologist and the psychiatrist.

An article published this July in the New Scientist indicts pharmacological technicians and psychiatrists in Latin America, West Europe and the Soviet Union for their involvement in torture and interrogation experiments on political prisoners.

The extent of this ethical betrayal can be gauged from one of the instances cited by the author. An entire ward of the Military Hospital in Montevideo, Uruguay, has been set aside for the administration of pharmacological torture.

"The hospital is renowned for its special recipe of taquiflexil and sodium pentothal. The first of these, a drug derived from curare, produces terrible agony brought on by painful muscle contractions and, unless administered under strict medical supervision, is fatal. The subject is kept alive in an oxygen tent for several hours until he receives a weak dose of sodium pentothal which produces a total relaxation and semi-euphoria which the interrogator then capitalizes on . . ."

Such methods are new in Latin America, but the use of applied pharmacology and the abuse of psychiatric institutions in the Soviet Union has been widely documented by victims such as Zhores Medvedev and by commentators such as I. F. Stone. The incarceration of political dissenters in special Soviet psychiatric hospitals amounts to what is unquestionably the most sophisticated weapon of political warfare. It remains true today, as it was in the early Fifties, that psychiatric diagnoses of political dissidents, such as the still-imprisoned Pyotr Grikorenko, do not result from clinical examinations or objective tests but from KGB directives.

Pharmacology, Psychiatry Abused

Diagnostic teams under the direction of the infamous Dr. D. R. Lunts of the Serbsky Institute of Forensic Psychiatry have often reversed the findings of mental normality made at other institutes; the courts accept the findings of the Serbsky Institute. It comes as no surprise that a prisoner has reported seeing Dr. Lunts in the uniform of a KGB colonel.

Prisoners found "guilty of crimes committed while of unsound mind" and sent by the court to special psychiatric hospitals "until their recovery" frequently complain of pharmacological tortures.

Significantly, it has been this betrayal of pharmacology and psychiatry which has stirred most profoundly the conscience of the international medical science community. Yet those stirrings have been pathetically slight. A volume of internal pressure was generated within the World Psychiatric Association at its last meeting in Mexico City in 1971 to debate openly a Canadian motion condemning the incarceration of Soviet dissenters in psychiatric hospitals. But the bureaucracy of the WPA and the hesitance of many of its members to take a stand on a social issue led to a frustrating impasse and official silence.

But the moral lethargy of the world's scientists is overshadowed by the collusion of governments in torture in research and training. As a member of NATO, it is to Canada's shame that it has tacitly sanctioned military exercises within NATO that clearly violate every international convention on the treatment of prisoners whether in peace or during war.

For instance, recent scandals in West Germany, Belgium and Britain have revealed that torture-training is regular NATO policy and tolerated by the NATO supreme command when such programs are incorporated into military training for national armed forces.

In a memorandum submitted by the British government at the time of an official inquiry into alleged sensory deprivation torture in Northern Ireland, Amnesty International eloquently defined the fundamental character of psychological torture: "It is because we regard the deliberate destruction of a man's ability to control his own mind with revulsion that we reserve a special place in our catalogue of moral crimes for techniques of thought-control and brainwashing."

Whether a man "goes out of his mind" from the pain of needles under his fingernails or from an electronically induced delirium, the final effect remains that of an unbearable sense of loss, not only of control but ultimately of identity. He becomes, in Sartre's words, "detached from his real self." Perhaps nowhere has the suffering of this collapse been more graphically conveyed outside of literary masterpieces such as Kafka's The Trial or Shakespeare's King Lear than in Paulo Schilling's Theory and Practice of Torture in Brazil.

'Chaos of Convulsions'

In his description of the experience of electrical torture, he writes: "The torturer's abundant imagination determines where the shocks will be applied to the victim's body. The simplest way is to stick the contacts between the fingers or toes and then turn the crank. The electrical discharge causes a sensation which is difficult to describe: a physical and psychological commotion filled with electric sparks which, together with convulsive shaking and loss of muscular control, gives the victim a sense of loss, of unavoidable attraction for the torturing electric trituration."

"The shock causes a stimulation in the muscle identical to the stimulation of the nerve fibres . . . causing disorderly, uncontrollable movement similar to epileptic convulsions. The tortured victim shouts with all his might, grasping for a footing, somewhere to stand in the midst of that chaos of convulsions, shaking and sparks."

It is in this utter diminishment of humanity that torture reveals its ultimate character, for it is this final repudiation of human freedom which most acutely gives meaning to Erich Fromm's now-famous definition: "Sadism is the passion for gaining absolute control over another being."

$676 Billion ... For What?

By TOM RIDDELL
The Progressive

In the course of the Indochina War, American forces exploded more than 15 million tons of air, sea, and ground munitions throughout North and South Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia. They also saturated South Vietnam with more than 100 million pounds of chemical herbicides. More than 8,000 American aircraft were lost in the war (about 4,600 helicopters and about 3,600 planes).

Of the three million who served Uncle Sam in the military, 56,241 were killed in hostile and non-hostile action. Another 303,616 were injured. The total casualties of this war give it the dubious distinction of being the third most costly war in American history, surpassed only by the Civil War and the Second World War.

Among the injured Americans there are almost 23,000 double amputees and more than 2,500 quadruplegics and paraplegics. About 260,700 Vietnam veterans receive disability payments from the Veterans Administration. More than 1,300 Americans are classified as missing in action and, most likely, they too will be added to the list of those killed in action. The statistics are abundant and grim. America's longest war has exacted a heavy price.

All of these statistics demonstrate the magnitude of the U.S. effort in Vietnam to "secure self-determination for the South Vietnamese and to halt the spread of international communism and the aggression of the North Vietnamese"—or whatever it is we accomplished in 10 years of war and more than 25 years of American "interest" in Southeast Asia. However, there is one further measure of the high cost of this war that all Americans can easily understand: the vast amount of money that we have spent, and will spend, as a result of our Southeast Asian adventure. We can only estimate the total final cost, since there are future costs such as veterans' benefits, aid to Indochina, and interest payments on the national debt which have not been incurred yet, but which will have to be paid in the decades to come.

The future costs of wars are usually larger than the original costs of the wars themselves. For the war in Vietnam, when all of the past, present, and future costs are calculated, the ultimate expense will amount to about $676 billion. That is more than two-and-a-half times the amount of money that the federal government will spend this year for all purposes, and amounts to about one-half of the current total annual output of the entire American economy.

The $676 billion figure has been derived by adding together all of the costs of the federal government and to the American economy occasioned by American involvement in Indochina.

It includes the money that was spent to buy the planes and bombs used in the air war. It includes the money used to provide shelter, clothing, food, and entertainment for American troops. It includes aid to the separate states of Indochina going back to the post-Second World War years. It includes the aid that the United States decided in 1950 to grant France for its efforts in Indochina until the French withdrawal in 1954.

The future costs of aid to Indochina, veterans' benefits, and interest payments on the national debt have also been included. Estimates of the amount of income that has been lost to the American economy as a result of death and disability of servicemen and exile of young men avoiding the draft have been included.

I have also attempted to estimate the costs involved in U.S. efforts, official and unofficial, to end the war. Finally, there is also an estimate of the cost to the American economy, and some of its components, resulting from the de-escalation of the war.

Housing Tackled 2 Ways

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two approaches to the national housing pinch were described here at the weekend, one stressing co-operative building, the other land.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford told a B.C. Housing Co-operative seminar Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. is making organizational changes to help co-op housing projects. A new senior post of program director for co-op housing has been named, along with regional program directors specializing in co-operatives.

"Co-operative housing issues are different in B.C. from those in the east and the CMHC decentralization will provide local experts to help with local problems," Basford said.

At the same time, the new president of Canadian Real Estate Association, Brian Magee, of Toronto, blamed protesters and special interest groups for an anti-progress establishment that limits land use.

Magee, the chairman of A. E. Lepage Ltd., a national real estate firm, said it is not the investor, developer, home-builder or real estate broker who are causing the housing shortage.

Rather, "It is the people who have moved into a community a couple of years ago believe that all others should be kept out to preserve the stability of their neighborhood," thus denying average working people the chance to own a home.

He said things are made worse by those who force development into suburbs while applying pressure to prevent adequate transportation to the central city.

Magee added these same people demand rent controls after they have brought apartment construction to a standstill.

"If we believe all these activities are not in Canada's public interest," he said, "then I would suggest a counter-attack on these negative elements in our society may be in order."

Magee opposed government land banking or nationalization of land but said it is still up to government to modify regulations to allow greater concentration of housing units on urban land.

"Within two years, I would not be surprised to see the urban land shortage overcome as just about everyone realizes that the production of serviced residential building sites deserves priority," he said.

"By that time, the average price of a home-building lot could be reduced by as much as 20 per cent, which would at least hold down new home prices."

Basford also outlined federal assistance available to co-operative housing projects under June, 1973, amendments to the National Housing Act.

He said these include loans at favorable interest rates covering 100 per cent of project costs, outright grants of 10 per cent of capital costs and start-up funds of up to $10,000 to help co-operatives get the projects planned and launched.

Data-Bank Purging Of Records Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. law enforcement computer banks should be "purged" periodically of outdated information on criminals, and persons cleared of charges should be allowed to retrieve their police records, the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals says in a report.

The report urges congressional action to allow anyone cleared of criminal charges to go to court to get possession of all information on his or her arrest, including fingerprints and photographs, within 60 days after the case is concluded.

The commission dealt mainly with Computerized Criminal History systems used by at least 40 states and skirted the issue of intelligence data.

"People change with time," the report said. "Files which contain information about them, however, do not change unless someone changes them. Often old data presents an unreliable guide to a person's present attitudes and behavior. When such data becomes misleading, it should be removed from the system."

Richard Velde, associate administrator of the law enforcement assistance administration, which funded the study, said federal legislation is needed to determine basic security and privacy guidelines and to restrict "non-criminal justice system access" to the computer files. Velde said that under the commission proposal, old information "purged" from the computer would be sealed.

It could be reopened only if the person involved was subsequently wanted or arrested for a crime. The records would be reopened "only for purposes of subsequent investigation, prosecution and disposition of that offence."

Insider Trading Report Bared

The British Columbia Securities Commission today released its first report on insider trading in this province and it contained few surprises except possibly the sale of 3,200 shares of MacMillan Bloedel by senior company officers.

The sale was balanced in part by a purchase of 300 shares by another senior officer of the company.

MacMillan shares have risen to about $40 on the strength of a brisk lumber and newsprint market, up from $27 in January. The forest industry is cyclical, running in about three-year patterns.

The senior officers retained a couple of hundred shares each.

There was no insider stock activity among the politically sensitive stocks: B.C. Tel, Westcoast Transmission and Inland Natural Gas.

The 27 pages of insider reports deal mainly with penny mines and junior industrials.

William Irwin, superintendent of brokers, said the insider reports would be published once per month by the securities commission.

"Since the (Companies) Act gives the insider 10 days after the end of the month in which a beneficial change in ownership takes place to report to the commission, publication of insider trading in the weekly summary will be included in the last summary of the month," Irwin said.

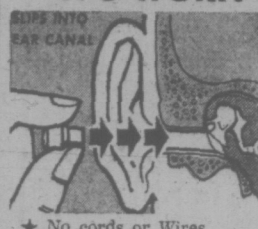

"We hope that the publication of the insider trading data and our plan to publish notices of filing of financial information will make some contribution towards developing a more informed investor in British Columbia," he said.

Neonex president James Pattison was active in trading stocks of his companies, the insider reports show.

He sold off 1,455 shares of Adonis Mines Ltd. but still holds 216,147 shares. He also sold 14,500 shares of his subsidiary, EDP Industries Ltd., but retains over 2 million EDP shares.

George Weston Ltd. bought 1,800 shares of Class A Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd. to bring its total holdings to 322,765 Kelly Douglas shares, the report shows.

Lions Crossed Up by Playoff Foes

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — The B.C. Lions made it into the Western Football Conference playoffs at Empire Stadium Saturday night, but the other half of the story didn't work out the way coach Eagle Keys thought it would.

Clearly superior in a 15-7 victory over Calgary Stampeders, the Lions figured to meet Edmonton Eskimos in the first round of the play-downs, but the Eskis quickly changed that thinking around on Sunday with a 28-16 trouncing of Saskatchewan Roughriders to finish in first place in the West.

Thus the Lions will meet the Riders in a sudden-death semi-final at Taylor Field in Regina next Sunday. Winner will meet Edmonton for the right to enter the Grey Cup final.

After Saturday's win, Keys said, "I think that proves we are the second best team in the West—he earlier had conceded Saskatchewan the edge over Edmonton — and as we haven't played that badly lately, I think we have a chance in the playoffs."

Actually the Lions' chances probably rest with fullback Johnny Musso, the outstanding player against Calgary. Musso rushed for 101 yards and was also the Lions' leading pass catcher with 54 yards at the Lions completely dominated the game until late in the fourth quarter when the Stampeders scored their lone touchdown.

By then the Lions had a 12-1 lead, and it marked only the second time in the game that the Stampeders had penetrated any deeper into Lion country than the 41-yard line. Quarterback Peter Liske hit Jessie Mims for the Calgary major. Larry Robinson missed the convert. The Stampeders scored their other point on a 62-yard punt by Jim Furlong.

Earlier the Lions had stopped the Stampeders attack cold and on their first series of plays were unfortunate not to have scored a touchdown. Actually Musso went over from the seven, but the play was nullified by a holding penalty.

Ivan MacMillan came on to kick a 22-yard field goal to put the Lions ahead 3-0. Before the half MacMillan missed on two other field-goal attempts, but each time he picked up a single as the Lions led 5-0.

And once again in the second quarter the Lions were thwarted from scoring a possible touchdown, when a Don Moorhead-to-Slade Willis pass inside the five-yard line was called back for an infraction.

Musso, who also went over the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season in the game, scored the Lions' only touchdown at 2:10 of the fourth quarter, plunging over, but barely, from the three.

MacMillan put the game out of reach after the Stampeders had scored when he kicked a 41-yard field goal which bounced off the upright and the Lions had their final 15-7 margin.

Although playing with an injured ankle, which he hurt again, Moorhead hit on 18 of 29 passes for 153 yards. Liske had 15 for 32 and 163 yards.

The victory tied B.C. with Calgary in points, 12, but as the Lions had won two games from the Stampeders, it qualified them for the playoff.

As for the next test, Saskatchewan, it undoubtedly will be tougher.

In three games this year the Riders have dominated the Lions 21-5, 38-19, and 24-9. Against the other three teams in the West Lions had the edge, 5-3-1.

That was what Keys meant by "the second best team". Now he has to change his thinking. By Sunday.

Tom's Bombs Work

Times News Services

It's B.C. Lions against Saskatchewan Roughriders and Montreal Alouettes against Toronto Argonauts in next Sunday's sudden-death Canadian Football League semi-finals.

Edmonton Eskimos clinched first place in the Western Conference Sunday as Tom Wilkinson tossed three touchdown passes for a 28-16 victory over Saskatchewan in Edmonton.

That means the Eskis join Ottawa Rough Riders, first-place finishers in the Eastern Conference, on the sidelines Sunday awaiting the semi-final winners.

In next Sunday's Eastern semi-final, Montreal Alouettes are at Toronto Argonauts. Als finished third by dropping an 18-3 decision to the last-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats Sunday in Hamilton.

Argos locked up second place Saturday with an 18-3 triumph over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Toronto, Zenon Andruschyn bottling 12 points for the winners.

B.C. Lions won a playoff spot Saturday, knocking Calgary Stampeders in the discard pile with a 15-7 victory in Vancouver.

Both finals this year are sudden-death games and are scheduled Sunday, Nov. 18. The Grey Cup game is the following Sunday, Nov. 25, in Toronto.

Eskimos' win in Edmonton left them tied in points with Saskatchewan but the Eskis gained first place by virtue of two wins in three meetings between the clubs.

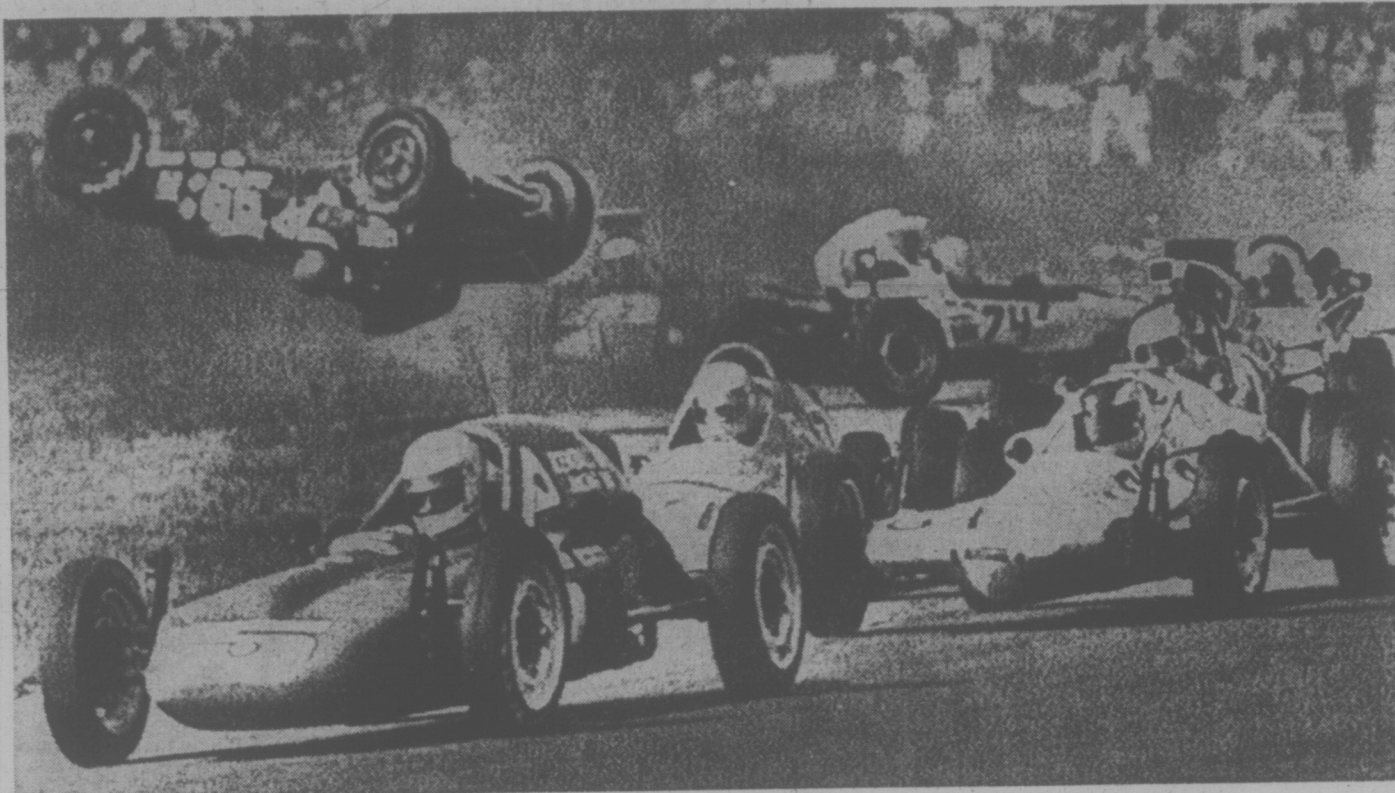

Wilkinson, substiting for slumping regular Bruce Lemmerman, hit Calvin Harrell, Garry Lefebvre and Tyrone Walls with payoff pitches before 21,234 fans who braved 11-degree temperatures and 20-mile-an-hour winds.

Dave Cutler, WFC scoring champion with 133 points, kicked field goals of 49 and 45 yards for the Eskis to set a CFL field-goal record of 32 for a single season. Cutler also kicked a single and three converts. Saskatchewan points came on touchdowns by George Reed and Bob Pearce and Jack Abendschan's field goal and convert.

Ticats converted a blocked kick and a fumble into two fourth-quarter touchdowns Sunday in Hamilton. Alouettes needed at least a tie to climb over Argos into second and the home-field advantage in the semi-final.

Hamilton, which won the national championship last season, became the fourth Grey Cup winner in as many years to miss the playoffs the following season.

Standings and summaries are on page 12.

City Girl Snaps Two Swim Marks

VANCOUVER — Alison Noble of Victoria turned in the most spectacular performance in an invitational swimming meet staged by the Canadian Dolphins Swim Club at the Percy Norman Pool on the weekend.

Coached by Ian Black, the 12-year-old member of the Victoria Flying "Y" Club set two of three national age-class short course records established during the two-day meet.

Miss Noble started her record assault Saturday by winning the 100-metre backstroke event in 1:21.1, slicing 1.2 seconds off the former mark for the 14-year-old division.

On Sunday, Alison trimmed one-tenth of a second off the 50-metre backstroke record set in 1969 as she covered the distance in 33.6 seconds.

Also establishing a national mark was Vancouver's Janka

Samuel, 12, who topped her own standard for 12-year-olds in the 100-metre butterfly with a time of 1:12.4.

Two other Victoria "Y" athletes posted victories in Saturday's events. John Vanderboor made it a double triumph in the boys' 15-17 age section as he splashed to wins in breaststroke and butterfly events, and Glen Dixon set the pace in a 100-metre freestyle contest for boys 10 and under.

Several Victorians notched second-place finishes, including Bill Hope, who was runner-up in two events, Elizabeth McDonnell, John Ellis, Bruce Kelly, Sylvia Calder, Bill Noble and Gary Utley.

AN ICY BLOW

Winter's icy hand virtually wiped out all sports activity Sunday in the Greater Victoria area.

All matches in the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association, the Vancouver Island Soccer League and the Victoria Rugby Union were postponed because of poor field conditions.

Two out of the three South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League games—both involving teams from north of the Malahat—were postponed.

And the annual Greater Victoria age-class cross-country championships were rescheduled for Nov. 18 at Beaver Lake Park.

By The Associated Press

When the schedule makers dreamed up the New Orleans Saints at Los Angeles Rams game for next Sunday, they had no idea it could create the biggest game in the Saints' 6½-year history in the National Football League.

A tough New Orleans defence held Buffalo Bills running star O. J. Simpson to 79 yards Sunday, and five field goals by Atlanta Falcon rookie Nick Mike-Mayer dumped the Rams—setting up an unusually important confrontation between a perennial playoff contender and a perennial also-ran.

Simpson, despite running under his average of 146 yards-a-game, raised his season's total to 1,104.

The result was a 13-0 shut-out for the Saints' fourth victory in the last five weeks. The triumph raised their record to 4-4.

The Falcons, meanwhile, administered a 15-13 licking to the Rams on Mike-Mayer's field goals.

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, Minnesota Vikings remained undefeated with a 26-3 victory over Cleveland Browns; Detroit Lions topped San Francisco 49ers 30-20; Chicago Bears clipped Green Bay Packers 31-17; Houston Oilers outscored Baltimore Colts 31-27; Kansas City Chiefs blanked San Diego Chargers 19-0;

Washington Redskins, leading NFC East, visit Pittsburgh Steelers, leaders in AFC Central Division, tonight.

Minnesota came within one game of wrapping up the NFC Central Division title with its eighth victory in eight games.

Fred Cox kicked four field goals for Minnesota while Oscar Reed and Stu Voight added short-yardage touchdowns to overpower Don Cockcroft's 27-yard three point-er.

Bill Munson fired a pair of first-quarter touchdowns passes to Larry Walton to spark Detroit.

San Francisco signal caller John Brodie had six passes intercepted—three of which led to Detroit scores. Albie Taylor scored the other touchdown for the Lions on a 19-yard run and kicker Jim O'Brien added field goals of 39, 10 and 37 yards.

Brodie hit Gene Washington for five yards and Ted Kwalick for 31 to go with two Bruce Gossett field goals.

Chicago quarterback Bobby Douglass scored four touchdowns, three on one-yard plunges.

Quarterback Lynn Dickey completed 22 of 32 passes for 340 yards behind perfect protection to power Houston. The Oilers had 444 yards in total offense.

Ed Podolak and Morris Stroud scored touchdowns and Jan Stenerud kicked two field goals for the Chiefs.

Bob Griese connected with Paul Warfield on a 37-yard Miami touchdown play in the third quarter, breaking a 14-14 tie.

Miami's Mercury Morris and New York's John Riggins scored two touchdowns each. Garo Yepremian added the final field goal for Miami.

Heroic Dane Can't Quite Stem Tide

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Danish-born goalkeeper Kjeld Brodsgaard came here with a problem Sunday — and he made it worse even before the game began.

The 23-year-old Brodsgaard tore ligaments in his right shoulder 10 days ago in training and missed last week's B.C. Soccer League game in Victoria when London Boxing Club edged Olympic Columbians 3-2.

Perhaps he shouldn't have played Sunday either, but Kjeld, accompanied by his Yugoslavian-born wife, Kathie, and young son, Shel, made the trip on the ferry and started for the Boxers in their bid to upset hot favorites Vancouver Italia.

The Boxers didn't quite make it — Italia snatched a thrilling 2-1 win before about 300 frozen fans at Empire Stadium to pull into a first-place tie with Pegasus and Gorge Molsons, who blanked Vancouver Sporting Club 2-0 Saturday in Victoria.

No one could blame Brodsgaard for the defeat.

Although he re-injured his shoulder by going for a low ball in the pre-game warmup, Brodsgaard played fearlessly throughout and threw himself from one side of the goal to the other in a bold attempt to stop the Italians.

He made a fine diving save off a blistering drive by crafty winger Sergio Zanatta at the 10-minute mark and blocked a difficult shot by Tom Newman moments later.

Brodsgaard was left completely unprotected when centre-forward Vanni Lenarduzzi collected a pass and scored after 17 minutes. He really couldn't be faulted on that one and the young "keeper foiled several later attempts to keep the Boxers in the game until they could get the equalizer.

That came at the 38-minute mark when George Pakos sent a fine cross which Dean Stokes just got his foot on to tap the ball into the corner of the net. The ball glanced in off the right-hand post and robbed ex-Canadian national goalkeeper Peter Greco of what otherwise would have been his fifth shutout in six games.

Brodsgaard, who deflected another scorching Zanatta shot around the left post with his chest just after the interval, continued to keep the Boxers' chances alive until that all-decisive penalty.

It came, and rightly so, when over-zealous Bob Bolibho brought winger Victor Kodolja down inside the penalty box and fullback Sam Lenarduzzi gave Brodsgaard no chance from the spot.

Brodsgaard got a lot of second-half help from Jim Irvine, who was supreme in the air, Ken Ross, who made a fine job of checking Zanatta, and Howie Anderson, Jan Bentley and Brian Robinson, who all had good games on defence.

KJELD BRODGAARD
... re-injured shoulder

But the forwards struck difficultly against the experienced Italia defenders, who shut the door for the rest of the game.

Only about 250 fans braved the gale-force winds at Victoria's Royal Athletic Park Saturday to watch John Iruretagoyena record the first shut-out of the season by an Island goalkeeper. He had a fairly easy time of it, with a lot of the defensive load being carried by Wainling Lee and John McGuire. Doug Marshall and Dan Henry got the goals, both in the first half.

North Shore Pauls, which held Pegasus to a scoreless tie Sunday, climbed with Westminster Blues, 5-1 winners over Simon Fraser University, into a tie for fifth place, two points behind the leaders and a point behind Boxing Club.

In Sunday's other game, Olympic Columbians and University of British Columbia battled to a 2-2 tie and on Saturday, Hugarian Turuls blanked Greek Olympics 2-0.

Not Tossed, But Stormy Ilie Is Out

Tossed or not, Ilie Nastase is obviously out of the Association of tennis professionals.

Jack Kramer, executive director of the association, confirmed in Paris today that the volatile Romanian star is no longer a member of the ATP.

Nastase said Saturday that the association had "thrown me out" for refusing to pay a $5,000 fine the ATP imposed on him after he defied a ban and played at Wimbledon earlier this year.

"It is not true that we have thrown Nastase out, but he has not paid his fine so his membership is no longer eligible and he can no longer benefit from protection of the association," said Kramer, who added that if Nastase paid the fine he could apply for readmission.

Being on the outside didn't detract from Nastase's efforts on Paris courts Sunday. Irritating the sellout crowd of more than 5,000 fans by disputing line calls by officials, Nastase rallied to win the French indoor open championship with a 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2 victory over American Stan Smith. Later he teamed with Juan Gisbert of Spain to defeat the American pair of Arthur Ashe and Roscoe Tanner in the doubles final.

In other professional tennis finals, John Newcombe stormed to a straight-set triumph over fellow-Australian Ross Case at Djakarta to win the Indonesian open title and Australian Rod Laver downed American Charlie Pasarell in four sets for the 100 miles... In Fuji, Japan, the West German duo of Dieter Glensner and Tony Hezemans won the 500-mile Fuji touring car trophy race by 12 seconds over a Japanese team... On Saturday at Phoenix, Gordon Joncock slipped past Wally Dallenbach 19 miles from the finish and won the wreck-marred Arizona 150-mile championship race. The final event of the season for Indianapolis-type cars was halted early by a crash that sent Bobby Unser to hospital with broken ribs and an ankle injury. # Plenty to Worry About As Cougars Drop Pair

The Western Canada Junior Hockey League standings today show Victoria Cougars only one point out of the fourth and final playoff spot in the Western Division standings, but despite the fact that the season is only a month old, they have ample reason to worry.

Not that coach Ollie Dorohoy hasn't been concerned. He has, but his woes only multiplied on the weekend when the Cougars dropped a pair of games, 6-3 to Edmonton Oil Kings Saturday night at Memorial Arena and 7-2 Sunday night to Kamloops Chiefs in Kamloops.

These are among the clubs

Cougars should be beating to make the playoffs and Sunday's outcome must have been particularly disheartening. The Chiefs ran in six goals before the Cats got on the scoreboard.

For the second night in a row, Dorohoy used both his goaltenders — Glen Anweiler and Glen Bueckert — but to no avail. Cougars were lacking defensively as the Chiefs levelled 50 shots on goal.

Kamloops, in fact, got its opening goal from Chris McMaisters while the Cougars had a two-man advantage.

McMaisters ended up with two goals, as did Randy Andreachuk, while Mal Zinger, Gord Stewart and Brian Arnold added singles. Derek Haas got both Cougar counters, but by then the damage was done.

It was pretty much the same story Saturday night before 1,453 Memorial Arena patrons as the Cougars got off to an inept start—again because of questionable defensive work and goaltending — and fell behind 4-2 at the end of the first period.

Anweiler replaced Bueckert at the start of the second period and while Cougars tightened up somewhat, they flubbed a couple of good breakaway chances with errant passing at the Edmonton blue line and still trailed 4-3 going into the third period. Oil Kings counted the only two goals of the final period one of them into an empty net.

Terry Bucyk and Mike Will each scored twice for Edmonton while the balance went to Rocky Maze and Clark Jantzie. Brad Anderson, Ron Poole and Mel Bridgeman were Victoria scorers.

Larry Hendrick started in goal for the Kings but was replaced by Doug Soetaert after giving up a soft score early in the second.

Edmonton outshot the Cougars in every period and ended up with a 44-35 advantage for the night.

In other WCHL action Sunday, New Westminster Bruins dumped the Oil Kings 9-1 with Ron Greschner scoring three goals; Calgary Centennials built a 4-0 lead in the first period and coasted 5-1 over Flin Flon Bombers; Terry Ruskowski's four goals paced Swift Current Broncos to an 8-4 triumph over Saskatoon Blades in a game in which the Broncos picked up 15 of 25 minors, the Blades drew three of five majors and each team got a misconduct penalty; Regina Pats blew open a 2-2 contest with eight goals over the last 40 minutes for a 10-2 victory over Winnipeg Clubs.

In the only other Saturday contest, Rob Watt's third goal of the night with 10 seconds left gave Flin Flon a 7-7 tie with Medicine Hat Tigers.

There's New Weapon In Esposito's Arsenal

By The Canadian Press
Phil Esposito shifted gears and Boston Bruins pulled into the lead in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League Sunday night with a 4-1 victory over California Golden Seals.

After beating rival goalies more than 400 times in his career, Esposito added a new shot to his repertoire.

The veteran centre collected his 15th and 16th goals of the season in just 12 games, but it was the 15th that everyone talked about.

Esposito, a left-handed shot, shifted his stick to the right side to baffle Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche and score off a power play.

"I never scored an NHL goal on a switch like that before," Esposito said. "I've been working on it in practice."

In other games Sunday,

Buffalo Sabres and Montreal Canadiens tied 1-1, Philadelphia Flyers blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 7-0, Atlanta Flames shut out Detroit Red Wings 2-0 and Chicago Black Hawks defeated New York Rangers 4-1.

The Bruins were upset by New York Islanders 6-4 Saturday and in other matches Canadiens beat California 6-2, Toronto Maple Leafs shut out Pittsburgh 6-0, Atlanta edged Philadelphia 2-1, St. Louis Blues defeated Los Angeles Kings 4-3 and Minnesota North Stars won their first game of the season, 5-4, over Chicago.

Buffalo outshot Montreal 35-20, but Canadiens' goalie Wayne Thomas was outstanding—especially in the first period.

It took Rick Martin's 11th goal of the season in the 15th minute of the second period to lift Buffalo into the tie.

The Flyers got their fifth shutout of the season from Bernie Parent, who now has allowed just 15 goals in 12 games and has dropped his goals-against average to 1.25.

Red Bellis scrambled 75 yards to score a touchdown on a kickoff return with five minutes left and give Cowichan Chiefs a 20-14 victory over Saanich Vampires in the sudden-death Vancouver Island Bantam Football League playoff final Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Both teams now advance to the B.C. single-loss elimination semi-finals next Sunday at Swangard Stadium in Vancouver. Vampires meet South

Vancouver and Cowichan plays Renfrew PMVA in the opening games.

Ross McCauley gave Cowichan a 7-0 lead in the first quarter with a touchdown and a convert.

Steve Short scored a TD, and Brad Leason converted it to tie it up 7-7 for Saanich before Mickey Jahelka crossed over for a major and McCauley kicked a single to give Cowichan a 14-7 half-time lead.

Saanich quarterback Randy Smith scored a touchdown, converted by Leason, to make it 14-14 early in the fourth quarter and set the stage for the winning run by Bellis.

WE WANT TO KEEP BREATHING!

CAN WE AFFORD TO HAVE:

- Our golf courses turned into housing developments?
- Tremendously increased greens fees to our golfers?

OUR GOLF COURSES PROVIDE:

- Means of keeping thousands of our youngsters off the street
- Recreational opportunities for all ages
- Social atmosphere and physical recreation for senior citizens
- Recreational facilities for visitors and tourists
- Jobs for thousands of people on year round basis

CONSIDER THESE FACTS:

- Trees and grass of one of our golf courses filter our polluting gasses and provide enough pure oxygen to supply over 10,000 persons per day
- Our increased leisure time demands more golf courses—not less

RECENT CHANGES IN LEGISLATION WILL RESULT IN:

- Doubling of land assessments on all golf courses
- Lack of construction of new golf courses so badly needed

The Honourable David Barrett
Premier, Province of British Columbia Parliament Buildings
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Mr. Barrett:

I am certainly in sympathy with thoughts expressed in the brief recently presented to you by the British Columbia Golf Association relative to tax relief for golf courses in the Province.

Every golf course in our area is virtually saturated! We need more golf courses to accommodate those of us who want to participate in this healthy, outdoor activity. We cannot afford to see our present golf courses turned into housing developments. They are a very valuable ecological asset to our area.

As an individual golfer, I cannot afford to pay the increased cost for each round of golf I play if the total tax increases are passed along to me.

We need our large green belts just to keep breathing. Please treat our golf courses the same as you plan to do our farm lands and parks.

Yours very truly,

Bettors Busy on Final Day

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Exhibition Park thoroughbred racing season finished on a high note Saturday as 9974 fans poured $821,161 into the mutuels, the second-highest handle in the track's history.

The 109-day meeting ended with a daily average handle of $529,712, an increase of 24.1 per cent over the $426,576 averaged in 1972.

The total wagering was $57,738,655, compared to $39,249,417 for a 92-day season last year. Daily average attendance was 8383, up from 8221 last year.

Henry Hill's Ceo Me won the $6,500 Au Revoir Handicap, pulling away from pace-setting Sunwapa in the stretch to pay $12.40.

The track also set a single-race wagering record on Sept. 15 this year when $99,658 was wagered on the British Columbia Derby. The single-day betting record, almost surpassed Saturday, was also set on Labor Day, when patrons bet $846,965 on a day when visitors to the Pacific National Exhibition were admitted to the track free.

The third-highest handle was recorded on July 1 this year, when $795,502 was wagered.

Basil Frazier, who didn't race on the final day, easily won the jockeys' title with 115 winners, eight fewer than the record he set in 1969, while Vancouver trainer W. H. MacDonald set a trainer's record when he saddled 49 winners, five more than Ken O'Connell.

Saints Spring Back

VANCOUVER — Victoria Saints discovered the knack of playing catch-up basketball Sunday and defeated University of B.C. Jayvees 43-36 to toss the Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Basketball League into a four-team deadlock.

Seldom behind in six previous seasons as they fashioned a sparkling string of victories in lower age divisions, last season's Canadian junior champions got away to fast starts in a pair of week-end games as they made their debut in senior ranks.

Against Vancouver Buzzbombs Saturday at Vancouver College, the Saints jumped into a 5-0 lead before shoddy shooting ruined what was otherwise a fine effort.

Hitting only nine of 42 shots from the floor as they outplayed the rugged Vancouver crew, the Saints trailed 26-22 at the intermission and couldn't mount a comeback charge in the second half as they dropped a 51-37 decision.

Going against the Jayvees Sunday on the UBC floor, the Saints again slipped out in front and appeared in command as they carried a 23-14 lead into the second half.

It suddenly looked like a replay of the previous night's effort as the coeds hit for 10 successive points at the start of the second session to grab a 24-23 advantage.

Then Wendy Wallace hit the target to end Victoria's scoring starvation and the Moe Turner-coached Saints were on their way.

Despite losing three players on fouls in the closing stages, they got nine points from Marg Mainwaring in the final 10 minutes and gradually expanded their lead on the way to the seven-point triumph that left all four clubs in the league with one victory.

Miss Mainwaring paced the Saints on attack Sunday with 10 points and clubmate Dina Brozduk was next in line with eight. Miss Wallace and Shirley Marshall each added six points to the Victoria total.

Rose Sebellin notched 12 for the Jayvees to top all scorers.

PACIFIC TOPS SOCCER

Pacific Region got a helping hand from the Europe Region squad Saturday and charged to the Canadian Forces soccer championship as the six-team tournament was concluded at Colville Park.

Getting two goals each from a pair of CFB Esquimalt players — Bob Laws and Al Ettinger — Pacific cruised to a 4-0 triumph over the Prairies in cold, gusty winds while Ontario was held to a scoreless draw by Europe and Quebec collected its only victory by nipping Atlantic 2-1.

Pacific won four matches in the five-day, round-robin series and was defeated by Ontario, which wound up with an unbeaten record. However, Ontario was held to draws three times and finished with seven points, one behind the title-winning Pacific squad.

Ontario was fortunate to escape with a tie Saturday, needing 15 saves from goalkeeper Bill Carey while able to test Europe goalie Jim Cavers five times.

Quebec's winning goal came on a penalty shot taken by goalkeeper Baz Wheeler, who was later named the tourney's most-valuable player. Ken Benoit had opened the scoring for Quebec and Bill Chambers had counted for Atlantic to leave the teams deadlocked at halftime.

Rookie, 21, Tour Winner

Times News Services
Rookie Ben Crenshaw, colorful Lee Trevino and leading women's money-winner Kathy Whitworth came up with tournament victories Sunday in golf.

Crenshaw, 21, became one of the youngest players ever to win a pro-tour title by firing a four-under-par 67 to win the San Antonio-Texas Open and $25,000 with a 72-hole total of 270, 14 under par on the 6,900-yard course.

Trevino came up with his second straight round without a bogey to win a $74,500 international tournament in Sydney, Australia. Trevino, who had shared the third-round lead with fellow American Jim Colbert, finished 15 under with 277 on the 6,850-yard Lakes course.

Colbert staggered in with an 80 and finished seventh at 289. Trevino's share of the purse was $14,900 and a new car.

Miss Whitworth shot birdies on three of the last six holes for a two-under-par 70 and a three-under 213 for 54 holes in the Lady Errol Golf Classic at Apopka, Fla. It was the tall Texan's seventh Ladies' Professional Golf Association win of the season, boosting her 1973 earnings in the year's final tournament to a record $82,864.

At San Antonio, veteran pros George Archer and Orville Moody each had a share of the lead at one time or another, but Crenshaw pulled away with birdies on two of the last three holes.

Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, was second for the third time this year with a 67 for 272. Archer, a former Masters champion who trailed Crenshaw by a single stroke when the last round started, was another stroke back in third with a 69—273.

Rod Funseth, had a 69 and was alone at 276. Jack Weing had the day's best round, a 66, and tied Dave Eichelberger at 277. Eichelberger put together a 68.

Most of the game's great names, including Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf and Trevino were among the missing.

At Sydney, Stewart Ginn of Australia, one stroke back starting the final round, recorded a 71 and was second at 281. Australians also took the next two places, with Graham Marsh third at 285, followed by Bill Dunk at 287.

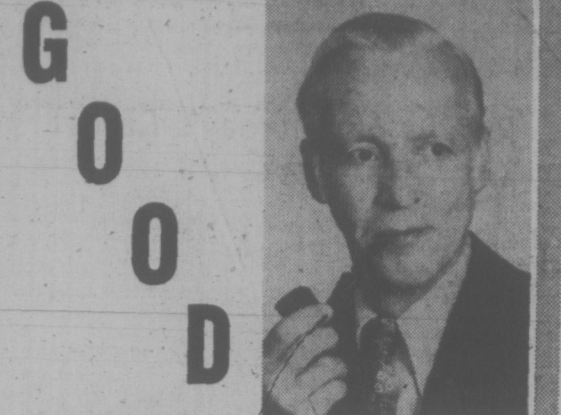

In the women's tournament, Gloria Ehret and tour sophomore Shelley Hamlin, Saturday's co-leader, tied for second at 215, worth $4,650 to Miss Whitworth's winning cheque of $7,500.

Sandra Post Elliott of Oakville, Ont., finished with a 71 for a 222 total, eight strokes

A Women's Lib Victory —Then Why No Cheers?

Being some selected items from a man's personal diary:

Item: I've been waiting breathlessly for the celebration — a display of fireworks, perhaps, or at least a jubilant march to the legislature — but so far the ladies of the land have been strangely silent about their great victory.

Here it was, at last, provincial legislation clearing the way for women to work underground in the mines, a dramatic breakthrough to the complete equality sought by the liberationists, yet there was no rejoicing in the streets, not even a grateful press release from the ladies.

For those of us in the newspaper business constantly besieged by women demanding publicity for their cause, often accusing us of not giving them a fair shake, the lack of response was baffling.

When I approached our office liberationist and pointed out to her that now she may work down a mine, just like a man, I found her noncommittal.

"But, sweetie," I said (she hates to be called "sweetie") "don't you realize that all the restrictions have been removed, that you now have the complete right to dig for ore?"

"Up yours," she said, surely an odd remark for one savoring a victory.

Item: My wife quietly going insane this month with promises, promises, promises. When you switch houses there's just naturally a lot of things that require doing in the one to which you've switched. My wife made a long, neat list of these things. She consulted the advertisements. She settled down in orderly fashion to phone for the experts.

The results were instantaneous. Help was out there, just as advertised. In no time at all she had the assurances of a vast array of specialists that they'd be around to do the necessary. There was just one problem. They never came. Ever. One had the good grace to phone with a reason. The rest just never came.

The TV man who was to put up the aerial on Tuesday was not there on Tuesday. Hasn't been heard from since. The plumber, a Mr. Fixit type who said he'd have the leaking kitchen sink repaired "in a jiffy," did not. Hasn't shown yet. The carpenter who advertised "No job too small" accepted the assignment to replace the leaking eaves, but got to thinking about it, I guess, and decided the job was too small. So it went.

My wife has kept her temper magnificently. I must say, and only got vehement once. That involved the washer and dryer purchased from a large downtown department store. Though they were more expensive than other models, my wife agreed to pay a little more for the store's brand because it could be delivered immediately. The others, the salesman said, were still tied up by the rail strike. But the washer and dryer did not arrive immediately. Oh, my, no. It wasn't until my wife made a most uncharacteristically irate call that we got action.

Then they sent us two dryers.

Item: A curious letter-to-the-editor in the paper today, signed by one C. McCreath, suggesting that I have over-sold the idea of the Mincome to people 60 years or more and it demonstrates once more how little is known of that program.

Mr. McCreath writes, for example, that a person over 60 who is unemployed "is probably on welfare and receiving as much if not more than he could get via Mincome." That's simply not the case. Mincome provides from $50 to $60 more per month than the average welfare payment.

Mr. McCreath cites the case of a man making $2.50 per hour (though that will not be the minimum wage until June of next year) and says his "take-home pay is still more than double the Mincome payment." Again, not anywhere close to the true facts. The net income, assuming the man has a wife over the age of 60, would be almost identical.

Mr. McCreath says that the only persons in the 60-64 group who might turn to Mincome are "those who are faced with losing their jobs for reasons beyond their control." Not at all. As I wrote originally, Mincome offers retirement five years earlier than the norm for the man who dislikes his job, who can live on $100 a week with his other assets and cash, assuming — as I did throughout my explanation — that his wife is the same age.

It's not for everyone, I agree, but for a couple over 60 with a moderate amount of cash and the desire to enjoy an early retirement Mincome is well worth investigating.

Board Appeals Reinstatement

A board of reference decision reinstating two teachers who were fired last year will be appealed by Greater Victoria school board Wednesday in county court.

Bona MacMurchie and Evelyn Ball were dismissed by the school board on July 13, 1972, for "neglect of duty."

They appealed to a three-man provincial board of reference, which ruled on Oct. 4, 1972, they should be reinstated.

The school board immediately decided to appeal the decision, but its appeal has been delayed since the spring.

In the interim, both sides in the case appeared before the B.C. Court of Appeal where the school board asked that it be allowed to present new evidence at the appeal hearing.

The court of appeal decided that no new evidence would be allowed, and the appeal hearing would be confined to evidence presented before the board of reference.

The two teachers, Miss MacMurchie at Margaret Jenkins elementary and Miss Ball at Lampson Street elementary, were fired after being absent from their teaching duties for most of the 1971-72 school year.

Their lawyer, Lloyd MacKenzie, said they haven't worked since, as the school board refused to rehire them until its appeal is heard.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation is paying their legal costs.

The board of reference said the two women, who live together, were ill with influenza for several weeks and were told by their doctor they should go to Arizona.

The two left for Phoenix on Nov. 9, 1971, and returned to Victoria in August, 1972.

Compulsory teacher membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation will give the BCTF too much power, incumbent Saanich school board trustee Jack Armstrong said today.

Armstrong was commenting on amendments to the Public Schools Act introduced in the legislature Friday, which include the re-introduction of compulsory BCTF membership for teachers.

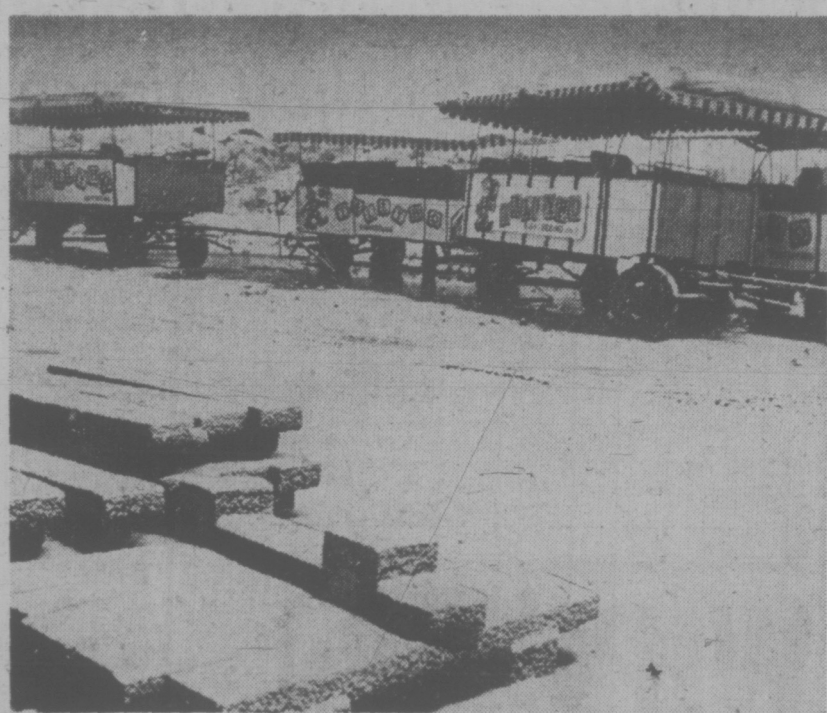

Compulsory membership, he said, means "teachers ac-

Snowly They Go

There really wasn't enough snow for sledding, but young Victorians, like the group to left—Corry Freeman, 12, her sister Colleen, 2, (on sled) and their dog Jackal—seldom see it and were anxious to take advantage of the unusual downfall Sunday. Other Victorians were not to be daunted by the snow or the near-freezing temperature that marked the weekend and took their regular constitutional along Dallas Road, below left. Meanwhile, the summer that ended only a few weeks ago seemed like a distant memory as Tally-Ho wagons huddled together in their wintry storage yard.

Mayfair Centre To Grow

A major expansion of Mayfair Shopping Centre will include a 3,800-square-foot addition to Woodward's food store.

Woodward president T. R. Farrell said the addition would be constructed to the front of the building.

Woodward's leases the building from Lang Investments.

The expansion would be part of a 15,000-square-foot enlargement of the Mayfair Centre.

Rene Savoie, manager of the centre, said a news conference would be called in mid-November to announce details of the expansion.

One of the changes involves roofing the mall that runs through the centre of the complex.

Land would be leased across Blanshard at Finlayson and Blanshard to provide parking for 120 cars. A span would be constructed by the shopping centre from the parking lot across Blanshard to the stores.

The land would be leased from the City of Victoria at about $20,000 per year.

In addition, another 100 parking spaces would be provided by decking a portion of the parking lot on the northern corner so it is almost level with Tolmie.

The Imperial gas station on Douglas would be phased out and landscaping and screening added, according to the Mayfair plan.

Waterfront Progress 'Inn' Step

Will a construction race begin on the Inner Harbor early next year, between the developers of two multi-million-dollar projects?

Both the proposed developments, the Reid Centre on Wharf Street and the CIL Properties Ltd. complex on the Bapco Paint site, have hotel, residential and commercial components.

And both are aiming for a construction start next January or February, with completion by late spring or early summer of 1975.

But spokesmen for the two organizations said today they don't consider they are involved in a race to get their establishments operational for the city's 1975 tourist season.

They pointed out that in neither of the two key fields, the hotel or residential business, will there be any real element of competition as in each case the premises will cater to a different clientele.

CIL president John D'Eath said the apartments provided in the $15 million project at Laurel Point will be in a much lower price range than those in developer J.A. Reid's site across the harbor.

He said he believes Reid's condominium suites, accommodated in one of that site's two curved towers, will be in the "luxury" bracket, possibly as high as $150,000 per suite.

But the reverse situation applies to the two hotel enterprises, D'Eath added.

Delta Hotels, the B.C. chain which would lease and operate CIL's hotel, caters to a "better quality" clientele than the Commonwealth Holiday Inns group which announced its partnership with Reid last week, he said.

D'Eath said the only "race" as far as he's concerned will be the effort to ensure the Laurel Point hotel is open for business by the early summer of 1975 at the latest.

It's not in the interests of any major hotel to open midway through a season, he noted, and in the event of real difficulties and delays he would rather sacrifice a full year than a few months.

Reid himself was not available for comment today, but one of his assistants, Bob Meadows, said he thought the two waterfront projects would complement each other rather than compete.

In any case, he said, "competition breeds business" and the Reid and CIL schemes opening at around the same time would benefit the local economy by attracting new business, especially conventions, to the city.

Reid has a land-use contract to build his Wharf Street complex, but as yet no building permit. In addition, he still has to satisfy city council as to his firm's financial capability of completing the entire project.

CIL has agreement in principle from council, but the next immediate obstacle to clear is provincial government approval for the necessary road closures. After that the draft bylaw for a land-use contract must be submitted to a public hearing.

Presuming both schemes go ahead as the developers have scheduled, the only question then remaining would appear to be whether any name confusion will surround the two hotels.

The CIL-Delta 200-room hotel has been tentatively christened the Harbour Inn. Reid and the Holiday Inns people announced last week they will be known as — wait for it — the Holiday Inn Inner Harbour.

Gorge Dispute Unresolved

Mediation efforts have failed in a dispute between Gorge Road Hospital and the Hospital Employees Union, a union spokesman said today.

S. A. (Bill) Muir, the union's Victoria representative, said "efforts were in vain" at meetings arranged by mediation officer Charles Stewart last Thursday and Friday.

The union's 350 members — everyone in the hospital except registered nurses and para-medical employees — have voted 98.2 per cent in favor of strike action to back proposals for a first contract.

Issues in dispute, the union said, include discrimination against women, seniority, an apprenticeship program and right to opt for arbitration through a tribunal.

The union has not yet served strike notice. It has called special meetings Friday and Saturday to report on what has transpired.

Dayshift and graveyard shift workers meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Centre; afternoon shift workers meet Saturday at 1 a.m.

United Way Goal Hiked by Hikers

Boy Scouts are expected to contribute another $10,000 toward the Greater Victoria United Way's $680,000 goal.

Boy Scout executive director Jack Scrivener said today more than 90 per cent of 500 participants in Saturday's walkathon completed the 20-mile circuit, despite brisk winds and bitterly cold temperatures.

Scrivener based the $10,000 estimate on last year's figures when 300 walkers brought in $7,200. The money will be collected from numerous sponsors within the next few weeks.

First to return was Ray Ricard, 24, of 11th Fort-Victoria, who jogged across the finish line at 11:17 a.m.

He was followed at 12:10 by Dwayne Brideaux and Pat Kirk of 5th Cedar Hill Company.

Last to finish were five boys from the 2nd Garry Oak Pack which left almost two hours late. They finished at 6:30 p.m.

They had set off with six boys, but one dropped out because he was late for his piano lesson.

Two Dash To Safety

Two Esquimalt men fled to safety early Sunday when their apartment at 841 Esquimalt Rd. was gutted by fire.

Police said Robert Cockerton, 25, and John Picken, 29, both of suite 408, escaped from the building at 3:40 a.m. when the fire began in the living room. Suspected cause was a burning cigarette.

Police estimated the damage at $20,000. There were no injuries and investigation continues today.

'Too Much Power' Returned to BCTF

usually can be fired by the BCTF over our objections."

The federation could take away a teacher's membership and thus prevent him from teaching, he said.

Membership in the BCTF had been compulsory for 25 years prior to 1971 when the Social Credit government removed the stipulation.

Armstrong said he didn't know a case during the previous compulsory membership period where a teacher had lost his job through withdrawal of his BCTF membership, but added, "it's always a danger."

If it did happen, he said, a teacher would have to appeal to Cabinet, and "this is not likely to get them anywhere."

Between 98 and 99 per cent of the 24,000 B.C. teachers continued to join the federation during the two years it was not a requirement, according to BCTF president Jim MacFarlan.

Armstrong's opponent in the upcoming election for Saanich school board, Dr. Charles Doyle, said today he sees nothing wrong with compulsory membership in the BCTF.

"If 99 per cent think it's a good organization and they're willing to pay their dues," he said, "I feel that the other one per cent get all the benefits of that organization."

Rubymay Parrott, chairman of Saanich school board, said she sees compulsory membership in the BCTF as no different than compulsory membership by doctors in medical associations.

"I see this as a forward step as then again the teachers can police their own ranks," she said.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn said he thought the move by the provincial government was a reasonable one to make considering the overwhelming support the BCTF has among teachers.

Armstrong also said he had hoped that in changing the Public Schools Act the government would have repealed section 53.

This section sets maximum honorariums that can be paid school trustees, according to the number of students in the school district.

Saanich district trustees get paid $58 a month, he said.

"For some of our trustees that works out at 75 cents an hour," said Armstrong. He said school boards should have the power to set their own honorariums, just as municipal councils do.

Mrs. Parrott said she had hoped a requirement that money referendums get a 60 per cent vote would have been changed to 50 per cent.

Stir-frying keeps nutrition, crispness and color intact

Esteem for the Vegetable Passed On by the Chinese

By MARY MOORE

One of the results of the high price of meat is that I am receiving increasing numbers of letters asking for vegetarian recipes.

The Chinese people have taught us a priceless lesson in the "panning" of vegetables—sometimes called "stir-fry" which retains their color, crispness and nutrients.

My dear friend Ivy gave me another nutrient saver—Baked Root Vegetable Medley. I gave you this recipe early last year and it was so popular it rates a repeat.

PANNED VEGETABLES

Note 1): Good for green beans, zucchini, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, peas, celery, carrots, green peppers, etc.

Note 2): If more than one vegetable is used start cooking that require longest cooking first.

To pan vegetables, melt butter in a large heavy frypan, add prepared vegetables and sprinkle with salt. It may be necessary to add a little water to some to prevent scorching. Cover frypan, heat quickly to form steam, then reduce heat and cook gently until vegetables are tender-crisp. Shake or stir almost constantly to avoid sticking. Serve the vegetables promptly in their own buttery sauce.

BAKED ROOT VEGETABLE MEDLEY (serves 4 to 6)

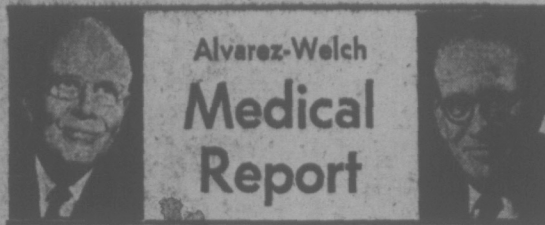

Two 1" thick slices from a 5" diameter turnip
Four 2 1/2" potatoes
Two 7" carrots (1 1/2" diameter)
Two 7" parsnips (1 1/2" diameter) (see below)
1 tsp. salt—divided
1/4 tsp. pepper
3 or 4 tbsp. margarine or butter

NOTE: If you do not have parsnips substitute equal quantity cubed squash. Pare and cut turnip into 1x2" strips. Pare and quarter potatoes.

Pare and cut carrots and parsnips into 1 1/2" chunks. (Reserve leftovers in plastic bags and store in vegetable crisper for future use.)

In about 2 1/2" boiling water parboil all vegetables together with 1/2 tsp. salt for 10 minutes. Drain.

In shallow baking dish melt margarine or butter and turn in drained vegetables. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 tsp. salt and the pepper and gently stir and turn them over to cover with margarine or butter. Cover and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour but carefully turn them over about twice during this baking period to brown them a little on all sides. Serve piping hot with any fish, fowl or meat dinner.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By WALTER ALVAREZ

Podiatrists are concerned because, although the new shoe styles provide more stability than some of the spindly spike heels that women wore a few years ago, these new "platform" shoes cause new problems — some of them serious.

One hazard is that because people are not used to walking on the higher platforms, it is easier to fall when stepping from a curb or step. And the higher the platform, the greater the chance of the person's doing some real harm to an ankle. Whereas once, the person might have sprained an ankle, now there is more of a chance of fracturing a bone in the ankle.

Another danger, according to Dr. Irvin Kanat, vice president of the association, is that of driving a car while wearing platform shoes. The heel of the shoe may get caught under the accelerator pedal and cause an accident. Therefore, people should keep an extra pair of low-heeled "driving shoes" in the car.

The most common injuries that podiatrists see, as a result of persons wearing platform shoes, are fractures and torn ligaments. The shoes can also cause poor posture, aching feet and legs, and corns or calluses.

People who have weak ankles or have injured their ankles previously should be especially careful if they wear these shoes. Besides the physical dangers, the shoes can also cut down on the wearer's mobility, balance, and speed.

WOMEN'S SMOKING

In a report from the American Medical Association I read that the present-day increase in cigarette smoking by women is blamed for an increase in the incidence of sudden death in women from coronary heart disease (disease due to blocking of the coronary arteries which supply the heart with blood).

Statistics show that in the 1950s, 12 men died suddenly from coronary heart disease for each woman who died the same way. But in the late 1960s, with the increased tendency of women to smoke, the ratio of sudden death from heart attacks in men and women had dropped to four in men for every one in a woman.

Interestingly, the average age for women dying suddenly from a heart attack has been found to be 67 years if the woman is a non-smoker; and 55 years if she is a light smoker; but it is 48 years if she is a heavy smoker.

These figures certainly should make a woman, especially if she is a heavy smoker, hesitate a moment before she lights another cigarette.

dear abby

Allow Some Spoiling

DEAR ABBY: That young mother who resented the way the grandparents "spoiled" her children, reminded me of myself 25 years ago.

I, too, deeply resented the way my parents spoiled my youngsters. I almost dreaded letting my children spend a weekend with their grandparents. Then, one day my wise sister in law took me aside, and said: "Children need to get away from that strict parental discipline once in a while—to be 'spoiled' and made to feel 'special,' and who better than grandparents should do it? Children need to learn how to cope with a different set of rules in a different situation."

She was right, of course. The occasional "spoiling" my children enjoyed from their grand parents didn't hurt them one bit—M.S.

DEAR M.S.: Thank you for a letter which came just in time to help me justify spoiling my own grandchildren.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty lashes with a forked tongue for allowing your readers to suggest that snakes make "nice pets" and require a minimum of care.

Any competent herpetologist can tell you that snakes are among the most difficult animals to keep in captivity, for the following reasons: They are susceptible to infections which often become fatal because amateurs cannot detect a sick snake until it is much too late. Also, a snake's cage must be kept absolutely immaculate, with controlled amounts of fresh air, light, and heat.

Snakes show no affection whatsoever. They can be taught to tolerate some handling, but a snake does not recognize its owner or keeper.

Most snakes require a diet of live (or freshly killed) mice, lizards, and insects, which is a problem for most people.

Abby, if you don't alert your readers to the above facts, many may rush out and purchase a snake only to have the poor creature perish through its owner's ignorance—Snake Fan.

DEAR FAN: That settles it! No snakes for this household. It's difficult enough to buy beef without shopping for lizards, mice, and insects. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I know you have stated a dozen times that it is improper to write "no gifts, please" on invitations, but something must be done about showering expensive gifts on older people who neither want nor need them. I am soon to celebrate my 50th wedding anniversary, and I do not want a truckload of "things" for which I have no use.

There are so many lovely friends and relatives who go overboard, spending their hard-earned money for these useless gifts.

We want to entertain our friends, but we absolutely do not want them to bring or send us any presents. Isn't there some way we can let our wishes be known without being ill-mannered?—No Gifts, Please.

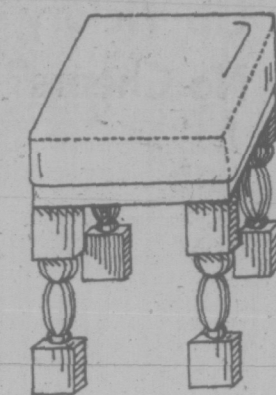

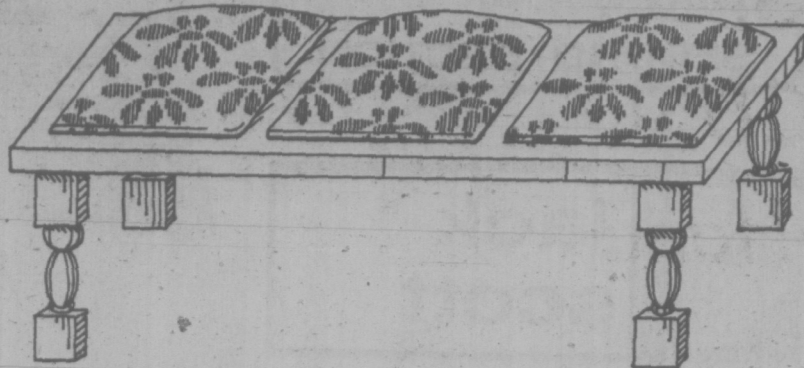

DEAR NO GIFTS: Requesting "no gifts" on an invitation is suggesting that gifts are expected. A close friend or relative can spread the word that a contribution to some worthy cause in honor of your "50th" would be your preference.

CONFIDENTIAL TO OLDTIMER IN PALM BEACH: Before you put down the youth of today, read this: "Our youth now love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority; they show disrespect for their elders, and love chatter in places of exercise. They no longer rise when elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their food, and tyrannize their teachers."

(Socrates wrote that in the 5th Century, B.C.)

9. Screw the plywood seats to the top of the bench from underneath. Choose a screw size that accommodates the width of the lumber and the plywood without passing into the cotton stuffing.

TO MAKE THE STOOL

1. The lumber for the stool base is cut to a square. Lumber in the 1x12 size is always shy about 1/2 inch in width so take this into account when you cut the square stool base.

2. Buy a 12-inch square foam rubber pillow base. Since the bench is less than a 12-inch square, the foam form must be trimmed to match the size of the base.

3. To plot a cover for the pillow form, take accurate measurements of the top and of one side. Allow an extra 1/2 inch on all sides for seam allowance. Cut two tops and four sides from your fabric.

4. To sew the pillow cover, sew the four side pieces together, right sides facing, 1/4 inch in from the edge to form a single strip. Pin the strip to a top section, seams facing out. The seams along the side strip should fall in the corners of the top piece. If they do not, adjust the size of the seams at this time. Sew all four sides of the top to the side strip. Sew the remaining side of the side strip together. Pin the remaining top side to the other side of the side strip. Sew on three sides only. Turn inside out.

5. Force the pillow into the cover and hand-sew the remaining seam closed.

6. Attach legs and paint the stool.

7. Glue the pillow to the stool with bond cement.

Extra seating is a problem that's easily solved with a long bench or stools. They're not difficult to make and can be upholstered, as pictured here.

The base of both the bench and stool is 1x12 scrap lumber. Attachable wooden legs, sold at hardware counters, come in a wide variety of styles and heights. The seats for the bench have a plywood base topped with cotton stuffing covered with fabric. The seat for the stool is a 12-inch square foam pillow form. You will also need bond cement and screws.

TO MAKE THE BENCH

The bench can be as long as you like. A bench over 5 feet in length may require the addition of two extra legs in the middle.

1. Attach the legs, following package instructions, to the four corners of the lumber base.

2. Once you have determined the size of the bench, use brown paper to plot out the size and number of seats needed along its length. A seat should fall in the range of 15 to 23 inches long. Ideally, you should have an equal border of base lumber exposed around each seat, as shown in the illustration.

3. Use your paper pattern to cut out your seat bases from plywood.

4. Plane the top edges of the plywood seats so that the sides slope outward.

5. Place several thick layers of cotton stuffing on each plywood seat base (planned side). Try to taper the cotton towards the sides.

6. Place your fabric, cut larger than the seat, over the cotton, right side facing up.

7. Turn the seat upside down and tack the fabric to the underside of the plywood, using carpenter tacks. To tack, place a tack in the centre of each of the four sides of the seat, pulling a little taut. Continue to tack moving out to the corners.

8. Paint or stain the bench. To antique a painted surface, paint the furniture with a semi-gloss latex. When dry, paint over with a walnut stain. Wipe the stain off im-

Some 200,000 Canadians suffer from schizophrenia. Symptoms include difficulty in concentrating, loss of interest, unfounded depression and deterioration in the function of the senses.

Many physicians in Canada, the United States, Europe and South America are now treating schizophrenic patients with megavitamin therapy.

The eight-page folder "Conquering Schizophrenia" discusses this type of therapy. It explains that treatment involves the administration of massive doses of vitamin B3 and C as well as a high protein, low carbohydrate diet.

The folder also mentions the experience of several doctors with this treatment. For instance, psychiatrist David Hawkins of the North Nassau Health Centre in Manhasset, Long Island, reported not long ago that of the 5,000 patients he has treated with large doses of vitamins, some 80 per cent were greatly improved.

If any schizophrenic is interested in getting megavitamin therapy, he should consult his physician. There are hospitals and treatment centres in Canada and the United States which specialize in this type of therapy. Further information is available from the Canadian Schizophrenia Foundation.

With your request for the folder, please enclose a large (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope and send it to: Canadian Schizophrenia Foundation, 10-1630 Albert Street, Regina, Saskatchewan S4P 2S6. Please allow at least two-three weeks for delivery.

Peru Seeks CUSO Hand

LIMA, Peru (CP) — A Peruvian doctor has come up with a proposal that he hopes will revolutionize care of the mentally ill in his country — if he can get a little help from Canada.

"Care of the mentally ill is a world-wide problem, but in a country of low economic means it is especially serious and needs to be looked at differently," said Dr. Kenneth Tejada, a psychiatrist at the Victor Larco Herrera hospital here.

"The care of chronic patients — those who have been in hospital for a long, long time — is particularly serious. Unfortunately, it is only one of many serious problems."

Because care of chronic mental cases has lower priority — behind education, public health and sanitation, care of maternity patients and newborns, for example — he's seeking aid from Canada.

Canadian University Service Overseas (CUSO) has been asked to aid a $200,000 project to set up a farm north of Lima where chronic patients could be sent to live and work under supervision.

Work Helps

"Work is important therapy," said Tejada. "About 70 per cent of Peruvian workers are agricultural. Putting these people back into their natural setting, instead of in a city hospital, should be helpful in their cure."

The main public mental hospital for this country of 14 million people is in the capital city of Lima, where about 1,200 patients get mainly custodial care.

"Only 30 per cent of the Lima hospital now is used for acute patients; the rest are chronic patients."

One of Dr. Tejada's patients has been in hospital for 50 years. She has no family, cannot manage on her own, but is not violent, dangerous or even particularly sick.

"She's just slow — and now not capable of existing outside the hospital walls."

The Peruvian government supports the idea of the project. It has provided land for the farm — 350 acres of good agricultural land near the town of Barranco on the coast about 60 miles north of Lima.

The land is fertile, but needs water. Tegade has talked to engineers, both from Peru and from Canada, who are convinced the irrigation system could be renewed cheaply — probably for about $10,000 exclusive of labor.

Dr. James Lindsay, a Montreal doctor who visited the site and looked into all aspects of the problem for CUSO, has submitted a report favoring the project.

"If it works, it would change the face of mental care in Peru," he said in an interview.

Hopes High

He sees it as a pilot project, with other farms starting if this one works. After five years it should be able to care for about 500 patients, he says. It would help the acute care program for mentally ill by freeing beds in hospitals where there are treatment facilities.

CUSO has sought financial support for it through the Canadian International Development Agency.

Lindsay said the scheme has an excellent chance of success because "a project that has a dedicated worker behind it usually can be successful."

Tejada plans to go ahead with his project as fast as money permits. A former surgeon who decided to take post-graduate work in psychiatry in Germany, he is in charge of a small building housing about 50 mental patients at the Victor Larco Herrera hospital.

Behind the building is a miniature farm, with every square inch of a 50-by-60 foot lot used by the patients to grow something. Like children, they are proud to show off their tree or their row of plants. A small pen of guinea pigs is displayed to visitors with the pride of a Texas rancher showing off his prize cattle.

Lady Luck Cuts 'Em Off at the Pass

So often we hear of the frustrations of travel. The disappointments. Minor annoyances. Misunderstandings. And the days when luck seems to run out.

It's a refreshing change therefore, to come upon a story in which potentially frustrating experiences end with Lady Luck in the driver's seat.

It centres around two sisters (formerly of Toronto and now of Victoria) whose first names, among friends, are Joanie and Jodie.

'Established Parties Best For Women'

BRANDON (CP) — The vice-president of the National Action Committee on the Status of Women says women seeking election to public office should work through established political parties.

June Menzies of Winnipeg, an unsuccessful Liberal candidate in the June 28 Manitoba general election, said political parties are "thirsty for the participation of informed women."

Speaking to about 30 people at a weekend conference on women in politics, she said women wanting to correct the legal inequalities due to sex discrimination must have support from political parties.

A possible solution would be to institute a quota system for women in the Canadian senate. "Once we have 20 or 30 women in the senate, it would be easier for people to become more accustomed to women taking an active part in politics."

It's kind of seedy, the old house on Quadra Street.

Somewhere there's a cracked window pane amid paint that's peeling sadly, but you walk up the front steps and, yes, you've come to the right place.

It's there, printed sort of informally on a small piece of paper: The Yoga Institute.

And a young man with bare feet bids you enter and suddenly in the dingy hallway a depression descends. You're not quite sure why, but you wish you hadn't come at all.

Then a young woman with the beauty of contentment in her face comes from upstairs and you all sit down to talk.

Very soon, you realize that to Jack McKenzie and Winnie Imrie it matters nothing that the house is old and run down; and that it probably wouldn't matter if the house wasn't there at all.

And when you step out into the rain again almost two hours later you feel different. You've learned — no perhaps not learned, for learning takes longer, but heard — that there is more to life than having fine houses and fine cars and window panes that aren't cracked. And you're not depressed any more.

In the time between, you've had communicated to you a belief in classic yoga; a belief so strong, so obvious that you know that here in Victoria are two young people who have nothing they are trying to sell, but a way of life they want to share.

The sharing starts this week when they begin the first of their 10-week introductory courses on classic yoga. The first session is tonight with classes from 6 till 7 and then from 7:30 till 8:30. Enrolment and inquiries can be made at 2322 Quadra Street.

Fees are $30 for 10 classes, one hour once a week, or $60 for 20 classes, one hour twice a week and McKenzie says the money covers only their board and cost of food.

JACK

"This is not a money-making venture, like so many others," says McKenzie, who suggests that lots of people who are studying "yoga" may in fact be learning something quite different from true yoga.

Miss Imrie, who ran the Institute of Yoga in Toronto before coming here, said "students who had studied yoga at evening classes couldn't believe they were taking the same thing because our course is so different."

Why is it so different? Well, Jack and Winnie — they'll be Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie in December — are two of only five graduates in Canada of the Yoga Institute in Santa Cruz, a suburb of Bombay, India.

After studying yoga in Canada for years, they took a six-month course and learned the classic yoga of Shri Yogen-dra, who himself learned direct from the Master Paramahansa Madhavadasaji and decided to end the hermit-type aura that surrounded yoga and became the one to take it to the Western world in 1918.

visitors were still there. "Up the room," Jodie says, "but still no purse." So Joanie decided to cross the terrace again and have one more look in and around the telephone booth.

Just as she was coming away for a second time, a man's voice behind her said "lost something lady?"

It was a policeman on terrace duty. His small kiosk was nearby.

A woman had found the purse in the telephone booth and turned it in to him. Its contents were intact including a considerable sum of money and many important cards and papers.

All Joanie had to do was give a percentage of the money (set by law in Scotland) to the finder. "And that, of course, I was very glad to do," she tells you.

The coat? It was left at a bed and breakfast stop on the outskirts of Dunbar.

Daughter of the family at that house worked in the Scottish capital. So, the morning they set out for that city, the sister gave her a lift.

Next day, when the coat was discovered, she remembered they were going to No. 3, Leamington Terrace.

A look in a directory gave her the landlady's name. And she telephoned to say she would bring the coat in if the

At the house in Quadra Street, under the official title of the Canadian Institute of Yoga, McKenzie and Miss Imrie will teach what they call "the kindergarten of true yoga."

"We will teach the method by which realization takes place, a totally honest, totally pure method," said McKenzie. "Yoga is a way of life, not something you study and forget."

The courses will cover "relaxation, postures, correct breathing, yoga hygiene, mental training and proper diet." Although as far as diet is concerned, says McKenzie, "we only advise what is right for good health, we don't insist on it."

The 10 lessons will encompass the eight basic steps leading to 100 per cent consciousness which, explains McKenzie, integrated personality — physically, mentally, morally and spiritually.

"Scientists say the average man is only 10 per cent conscious now," McKenzie said.

The eight steps, much the same as the Ten Commandments, include such things as Non Stealing, Truthfulness, Non Materialism, a Balanced Sex Life and Non Injury. But McKenzie points out they are "universal vows" and don't preclude anyone from having any other religious views.

Incidentally, the Yoga Institute in Bombay is the only one recognized by the Government of India as an authentic teaching institute of yoga and is a member of the International Board of Yoga, formed last spring in an attempt to standardize teaching all over the world.

Unlike the often-crowded "evening-class" yoga courses, McKenzie and Miss Imrie will insist on a maximum of eight students to a class.

"Ours is a scientific approach," says Miss Imrie. "We keep individual records, maintain a close connection with our students and get into it far more deeply. It's a vastly different experience from trying to learn in a large group."

WINNIE
... ex-stewardess

Basically, says McKenzie, people who become involved in classic yoga are going to be improved people. "If you're a writer, then you'll be a better writer; if you're a businessman, then you'll be a better businessman."

The simple yoga life is a far cry from what both McKenzie and Miss Imrie did a few years ago.

Winnie smiles almost coyly as she confesses she was once an airline stewardess.

"I can hardly believe it now. — it's like opening the lid of a coffin and looking in and seeing what I was — it's so different."

Jack, once a stockbroker and before that a city planner in Saskatoon, gave up an active sports life for yoga. Far from the popular idea of what a yoga teacher is like — long hair, beard, flowing clothes — Jack is a clean-cut, neatly-dressed, handsome young man who once played semi-pro hockey, football and basketball and was a competitive skier.

Sport and competition don't fit into the yoga way of life. As Jack explains it, those involved in yoga believe competition, in sport as in anything, between people leads to competition between countries and that leads to war.

"Jogging, running, swimming, in fact exercise of all kinds, is fine but competition isn't necessary," McKenzie said.

Makes you feel guilty you've been a sportswriter!

"Turning to yoga is a big change for most people," Jack explained. "Today, competition in everything is such a big thing, right from early days at school. It's so hard to get away from."

Oh come now, Jack, what's a little healthy competition, you think to yourself. And you think again of work and of play and of how the kids were engaged in that "healthy competition" with their little fists before you left for the office that morning.

And you get home and there's an argument raging between two small daughters as to whose Halloween pumpkin has the most seeds in it!

Yes, indeed, you think again and you wonder what peace would be like . . .

OPERATION SALMON

Despite snow and hazardous driving conditions, members of the Amalgamated Conservation Society and volunteers turned up Sunday to transfer salmon blocked by the Sooke River falls to spawning beds upstream. A total of 50 coho capable of producing 50,000 eggs were moved in the operation which lasted several hours. With the help of navy divers, the fish were first seined in two pools and then netted individually. The salmon were immersed in a tranquilizer before being placed in a water tank and transported by trucks to the up-river pools.

At one pool just below the waterfall a 850-foot skyline was used to haul the fish in cans to a truck on the road above. The fish were released by hand in a pool and, after a short period of rest, proceeded upstream. The operation was a success according to Al Meadows, co-ordinator of the annual project. The upper reaches of the Sooke river have never produced salmon because of the falls. Now it is fast becoming a major producer.

Seining the large Sooke pot holes was a major task of the salmon moving operation. Volunteer navy divers were used to see the net did not catch on rocks as men pulled it in with its catch of coho. Care was taken to see the fish were not injured before being transferred from the seine to water tanks at the river's edge. About 50 volunteers took part in the operation.

Fire Kills Woman, 42

Eula Park, 42, died in Victoria General Hospital Saturday afternoon following an early morning fire in her two-storey home at 1770 Fort.

Her mother, Hazel McCauley, 65, also in the house when the fire started, is in good condition at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. She suffered smoke inhalation.

The two women were asleep when the fire broke out about 4 a.m.

Firemen estimated $10,000 damage was caused by the fire, mainly to the downstairs bedroom area.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An experience early Saturday morning ended up costing Reginald Clifford Hembrough an estimated $1,325 — $700 in damages to his car and another which collided on Broad Street, and $625 in fines he must now pay after appearing before Judge F. S. Green in Victoria provincial court Saturday.

The fines were imposed after Hembrough, 21, of 2645 Blanshard, pleaded guilty to impaired driving, driving without insurance, and not having a driver's licence.

"I am sure you find yourself in a very unenviable position," Green said.

In addition to the fines — $350 for impaired driving, $250 for no insurance and $25 for no licence — the judge prohibited Hembrough from driving in Canada for six months.

A 30-year-old man who pleaded guilty to false pretence, fraud and hit and run was remanded in custody to Nov. 14 for a presentence report.

Monte William Tucker of no fixed address admitted cashing two worthless cheques for $80 at F. W. Woolworth, 1200 Douglas, on Sept. 11.

He also admitted obtaining food and lodging by fraud at the Century Inn, 603 Pandora, Oct. 16.

In addition he changed his plea to guilty in connection with a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident laid when the accused drove off after colliding with another car at Wharf and Yates May 31, causing $300 damages. He was supposed to appear before Judge Harold Alder on the charge Oct. 26 but did not.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the accused had previous convictions for impaired driving, fraud and false pretence.

Because of that and because Tucker had failed to show up in court Oct. 26, Green said he opposed release and remanded the accused in custody.

4-H Clubs Going Urban

A youth development branch is being created in the provincial agriculture department with its first program to be expansion of 4-H programs into urban areas, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said.

He said if pilot projects in Nanaimo, Duncan, Sidney, Courtenay, Campbell River and Port Alberni are successful the program will be expanded to other urban centres.

Urban 4-H groups will not be able to take part in livestock programs, he said, but will be eligible for activities which will include dog, bicycle, photography and snowmobile clubs, and travel programs.

Research Curbs Deplored

TORONTO (CP) — Over-cautious government regulations that prevent investigation of new drugs are hampering medical researchers in North America and short-changing patients, a British researcher said Saturday.

Dr. Michael Besser of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, part of the University of London medical school, is investigating revolutionary new hormone compounds developed in the United States because U.S. researchers are not yet allowed to use them.

"The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is my most valued research assistant," Dr. Besser said in an interview. "I feel strongly for my colleagues in Canada and the United States because they are being manacled in their work. But I benefit because I can use the materials they develop."

He was attending a symposium here called Frontiers in Neurology and Neuroscience Research.

At the symposium, hormones he described hold the potential for major advances in treating some forms of infertility, some complications of diabetes, a kidney problem and a relatively rare condition known as acromegaly in which parts of the body continue to grow because of excessive amounts of growth hormone. All are difficult conditions to treat effectively at present.

Cyclist Keeps Rolling

After three and a half months, 4,304 miles, three wheels and seven flat tires, 22-year-old Japanese university graduate Nobuyuki Kouva rode his bicycle into Victoria during the weekend.

Kouva left New York July 19 on the trip, which cost him $3,000 and some "cold and lonely nights."

He said he had met many good "cycling and social friends" and gained some happy memories on the journey.

Kouva said he will leave here in a few days to ride to Los Angeles, where his 30-speed bicycle will be shipped back to Japan.

He will then continue on a hitch-hike tour of the world which started in June, 1972, and will, he hopes, continue until the summer of 1975.

INDIAN ROCK ART PROTECTION URGED

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Pleas for stronger measures to protect Canadian Indian stone paintings and carvings were voiced during the weekend along with a call for action aimed at involving more native people in rock art research.

Delegates to a three-day Canadian rock art research associates conference heard details of progress in research into ways of protecting Indian paintings and carvings against the weather.

Several presentations showed Indian paintings and carvings on boulders and rock cliff sides across Canada defaced or chipped and stolen by vandals. In some cases, vandals used spray paint cans to damage some of the works.

Zenon Pohorecky, professor of anthropology at the University of Saskatchewan, said he hopes that more involvement with the Indian, giving them a leading role in studies, will become the association's major thrust in future.

"In the past many of them couldn't have cared less. Now they realize it (rock art) is sacred to them. It has antiquity for them, it may be part of the political renaissance."

Professor Kenneth Kidd of the Trent University anthropology department said federal, provincial and municipal authorities have to be convinced that Indian stone paintings and carvings are part of Canada's cultural heritage and not just a tourist attraction.

He said Canadian authorities appear to believe "rock art is chiefly interesting because it is a tourist attraction."

Pt. Roberts 'Fighting Mad' Over International Park

POINT ROBERTS, Wash. (AP) — A group of local residents have pledged to fight a proposed international park encompassing their community and several islands in the United States and Canada.

This tiny U.S. enclave, 25 miles south of Vancouver, is cut off from the American mainland by the 49th parallel.

"People are fighting mad and will not accept this," said Ruby White, a local realtor and spokesman for a newly-formed group calling itself U.S. Citizens of Point Roberts.

She said Sunday that telegrams expressing opposition to the park proposal had been sent to Sens. Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson and Rep. Lloyd Meeds, all (D-Wash.), and to Washington Gov. Dan Evans.

In addition, some 40 persons — a number she said represented one-quarter of the registered voters in Point Roberts — met Saturday to discuss opposition to the plan, released Friday by a technical board of the International Joint Commission.

The board suggested formation of a 3,000-square-mile conservation and recreation area, including Point Roberts and portions of the San Juan and Gulf Islands, to cope with the "foreseeable danger of environmental degradation" resulting from anticipated population increases.

Actress Weds Murderer

CANON CITY, Colo. — Actress Sue Lyon married convicted murderer Gary "Cotton" Adamson in a 15-minute "nice, quiet wedding" Sunday night. The bride spent her wedding night in a motel room. The bridegroom slept in his jail cell.

The double-ring ceremony was performed in a gold-carpeted conference room at the Colorado State Penitentiary in the presence of nine other inmates, Adamson's mother and five sisters, and penitentiary officials.

Reporters and photographers agreed to stay out of the room after Warden Gordon Heggie told them Adamson, serving a 20-to-40-year term for second-degree murder and aggravated robbery, made a "serious threat to react" if newsmen were present.

"It was a very nice, quiet wedding," said Mrs. Lucille Adamson, the convict's mother, after the ceremony. "But it had a very sad ending."

The bride, wearing a full-length dress of beige Belgian lace and a white veil, and the bridegroom, dressed in dark blue suit, fed each other pieces of a four-tier wedding cake at a 45-minute reception. Guests were served soda pop.

Prison officials said Miss Lyon's 20-month-old daughter by a previous marriage sprinkled red rose petals around the room prior to the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Paul Leaming of the United Methodist Church in Canon City.

The bride and her party entered the prison earlier in the evening and passed single-file through a metal-detecting device. Miss Lyon carried a small purse and a white bible.

BOSTON — Actor Rex Harrison will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree from the Boston University school of fine and applied arts Friday.

Harrison will be cited for his award-winning portrayal of Henry Higgins in the stage and screen productions of "My Fair Lady" and "scores of other memorable characters in his nearly 50 years as an actor," the university said Sunday.

AMSTERDAM — A weekend art auction hosted by actress Elizabeth Taylor raised $200,000 for widows and orphans of Israelis killed in the 1973 Middle East War.

"The reason I am doing this kind of Elizabeth Taylor stunt for war victims is that we have to care for those who are bereaved," Miss Taylor told participants who paid $50 apiece to attend.

"I am clearly pro-Israeli, but even more pro-humanity," she said.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Doctors say Gov. George Wallace, paralyzed from the waist down by an assassination attempt last year, is recovering "real, real well" from a minor operation Saturday to improve his bladder functions.

The surgery was a followup to prostate surgery the governor had in January, eight months after being shot and crippled while campaigning in Maryland for the Democratic presidential nomination.

OTTAWA — Nak Sun Lee, South Korea's minister of industry and commerce, arrived here Sunday with a trade delegation for a week-long visit to Canada.

Lee was met at the airport by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie. The nine-man delegation will discuss trade and economic affairs during their stay.

The group will visit manufacturing resource companies in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto.

It is the first visit to Canada by a Korean cabinet minister.

LUSAKA — President Kenneth Kaunda has threatened to resign in five years "if Zambians do not control their excessive drinking habits."

"I refuse to lead a nation of drunkards," he told political officials during the weekend. "I don't want to be part and parcel of a nation of drunkards."

"I would rather die than accept the responsibility of running a drunken nation."

He said excessive drinking in Zambia has increased since independence nine years ago. "Zambians have hit the bottle so much that the situation is getting from bad to worse," he said.

TOKYO — Gough Whitlam, the first Australian prime minister to visit China, flew home from Peking Sunday with a three-year wheat sales agreement and backing from Chinese leaders for his ideas on Australia's role as a significant member of the Asian community.

Some of the results of Whitlam's trip were disclosed by the official news agency Hsinhua in broadcasts covering a Saturday night banquet, a joint communique and a news conference that Whitlam held Sunday.

At the banquet, he told the Chinese: "I believe that in these four days and nights in Peking, we have removed completely the misunderstandings of the past generation. I deeply regret that Australia was so slow in reaching friendship with China ... I proclaim the enduring friendship between our two peoples."

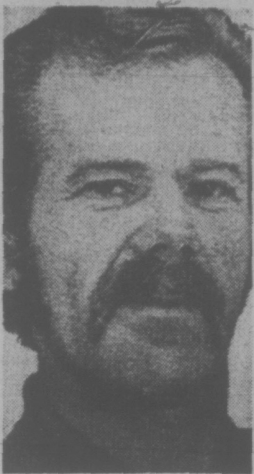

SEATTLE (AP) — Students at Kincaid Hall on the University of Washington campus will have to go farther than their doorstep to get psychedelic mushrooms from now on.

Robert Tomita, the university's physical plant director, says he has ordered workers to pull up any mushrooms they see.

Campus police Sgt. Joe Shea said action was taken Friday when dormitory staff members noticed a large number of people beating down shrubbery on the bark-covered grounds and collecting what amounted to several cartons of mushrooms.

WRITERS FORM UNION

OTTAWA (CP) — A weekend meeting of about 60 authors has resulted in the formation of a Canadian writers' union.

Margaret Laurence, interim chairman of the meeting, said Sunday that the objectives included a basic return from publishers for writers and possible investigation of school and university courses for Canadian content in the books used.

She said the group also is aiming at improving library lending fees and improving the quality and quantity of Canadian-written books in libraries.

"Many Canadians are just not aware of the volume of writing being done in their country that is of high quality," she said. "We all feel there is a great need for a strong action group."

She added that once the basic return from publishers is established, members of the union would no longer accept contracts for payment below that minimum.

Specific details of union requirements were not decided upon this founding meeting, which elected Marian Engel chairman for the coming year. Also elected to the executive were Harold Horwood and Rudy Wiebo.

Among the more prominent members of the new organization are Farley Mowat, Pierre Berton, Harry Boyle, Heather Robertson, George Ryga, Walter Stewart, Alice Munro and Margaret Atwood.

NO SLEEPING WITHOUT HORN

EAST FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — After 46 years of staring at the ocean as the last civilian lighthouse keepers in New England, Joseph and Charlotte Hindley have an observation: It was all pretty boring.

The years atop the off-shore beacons were "very uneventful," Mrs. Hindley said after her husband retired last week. "People always try to romanticize it."

Except for a couple of close calls in a rowboat and a humorous brush with a rum runner, the years blend together for the Hindleys. About the biggest problem was learning to live with the fog horn.

"You just talked between the blasts," Mrs. Hindley said. Her husband added, "At first, they use to keep me awake, but now I'm having a hard time getting to sleep without them."

Since 1926, Hindley has been a lighthouse keeper, cleaning the towers and making sure the beacons stay lit. Now all the lighthouses are automated or manned by Coast Guardsmen.

Mrs. Hindley says she doesn't regret marrying a lighthouse keeper.

"Sure, it got lonely sometimes," she said. "But it brought us closer together as a family. We had to make our own fun."

Wanted Women Fade Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI hasn't a clue about the whereabouts of the three women who made the ten most-wanted fugitives list three years ago this October.

The women, all associated with what the FBI calls revolutionary or new-left groups, have virtually disappeared, an FBI spokesman said.

Since the top 10 list was first started in 1950, the average lapse between the time a fugitive is placed on the list and when he's caught has been 145 days.

The three are Bernadine Rae Dohrn, 31, sought for unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for mob action and violation of the federal anti-riot laws; Susan Edith Saxe and Katherine Ann Power, both 23, charged with murder of a Boston policeman following a bank robbery.

Miss Dohrn was added to the list October 14, 1970. Miss Saxe and Miss Power were added three days later.

The FBI said part of its problem in tracing the women is that they don't fall into the usual criminal patterns.

"They have no previous records, and they don't follow the usual criminal activity," the spokesman said. "They live an entirely different life than the criminal as we know him."

But how could they have disappeared so completely—without leaving so much as a lukewarm trail behind them? "There's a lot of suspicions they've gone underground, probably being protected by people who share their views," said the spokesman.

They may be moving unnoticed from one commune to another, he said, "or perhaps they slipped over the border to Canada."

New Elm Tree Proves Disease Resistant

FREDERICTON (CP) — Two University of Wisconsin researchers say they have developed a new variety of elm tree that is highly resistant to the Dutch elm disease which has robbed the Canadian countryside of most of its graceful elms.

Dr. D. T. Lester, who was in Fredericton to attend a forestry conference said, he and colleague Dr. Eugene Smalley developed a hybrid of the Siberian and Japanese elm tree which can grow in North America.

They plan to detail their discovery, the product of years of research, in American scientific journals.

Dr. Smalley began research on elm trees about 15 years ago and Dr. Lester joined him five years ago.

The hybrid is highly resistant but not immune of Dutch elm disease, Dr. Lester said, but could be used in many urban areas as a substitute for the disease-riddled North American elm.

Tests were carried out by the two men on about 400 seed collections from throughout the world, but the hybrid of the Japanese and Siberian elm has proven the most successful.

But urbanites, who like the stately elm and its ability to withstand pollution, will have to wait a while.

"It will probably take about two or three years before the plant will become commercially available," Dr. Lester said.

Nearly all known varieties of elms are highly resistant to road salts used in the winter, are not affected by asphalt, and their roots can be cut without damage to the tree.

The hybrid may even be more beautiful than the North American elm. "We are extremely pleased with what we have found."

Dr. Lester said the Dutch elm disease will probably not obliterate the North American elm as some trees have been found to be highly resistant to the disease. Unfortunately, seed from these trees do not pass on their tolerance.

"We know there is a strong resistance in some trees, but how to convey this quality on to seeds and young plants is the mystery."

Chemicals now being used to combat the disease are costly and have not been completely successful.

One method has been to inject a chemical called Benlate into elm trunks. While it has met with some success, it cost $40 an injection and a tree often requires more than one injection.

Another chemical, Vopam, is sprayed on the ground to prevent root union to halt the spread of the disease underground.

Dutch elm disease is caused by the fungus cretactocystis limi, which develops in the sap-conducting vessels, plugging them or producing a toxin which kills tree cells.

The elm bark beetle is a carrier of the disease. Females lay their eggs in recently dead or dying elms. The eggs hatch and the infants fly to living trees to feed.

U.K. Drivers Remember

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — More than 200 antique cars travelled 60 miles to Brighton from London Sunday in an annual rite of motorized freedom.

Cars in Britain were allowed on Nov. 14, 1896, to go above four miles an hour, and a group of young men celebrated it by riding to Brighton from London.

Ever since, the first Sunday in November is remembered as emancipation day for the British motorist and celebrated by a similar drive.

SAANICH VOTERS

Mel Couvelier is one of the two candidates whose names will appear on a one-year ballot in Saanich. He would appreciate your support.

MEL COUVELIER HAS LIVED IN SAANICH FOR EIGHT YEARS

Mel was born in British Columbia. He is a successful business manager who has worked as a hydro meter reader, a logger, an accountant and as the owner-operator of a general store in Coal Harbour.

MEL COUVELIER WORKS EFFECTIVELY

When Mel came to Victoria in 1960, he purchased a small business, Maplewood Poultry, employing five persons in what people said was a dying industry. When he sold that company in 1971 it had become instrumental in creating a new industry for Victoria with over 4 million dollars annual sales and employing over 200 people.

Last December, Mel was appointed manager of the Victoria Symphony Society. By September he had spearheaded a subscription campaign which now sees the Symphony playing to full houses . . . and people still are trying to buy tickets.

MEL COUVELIER SERVES HIS COMMUNITY WELL
He is Chairman of the Board of Referees for the Unemployment Insurance Commission on Vancouver Island. He is a Board member of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews—Pacific Region.
He is Past Vice-President of the Junior Achievement Association, a group serving our high school students.
He is an active Rotarian.
He is past Vice President of the Executive Management Club.
He is past President of Sales and Marketing Executives. Mel Couvelier is recognized by his associates as a community leader with ability and determination.

ONE BALLOT—ONE MAN—FOR ONE YEAR

On Saturday, November 17, voters in Saanich will be given a special ballot to elect a representative to replace the position vacated by Alderman Waring. Only two names will appear on the ballot.

We ask you to consider Mel Couvelier's practical experience and success. He doesn't own speculative land in Saanich. He has no hidden investments in Saanich. He lives in Saanich because he wants to. He will apply his proven ability to help solve the problems facing Saanich voters.

Mel Couvelier lives at 2987 Gordon Head Road. He and his wife Millie have three children aged 24, 20, 10. He knows the problems of crowded schools and inadequate recreational facilities. He has seen friends move out of Saanich because of high taxes. He knows how to manage money, resources and people. He is a good, hard-working human being, and he's prepared to serve you to the best of his ability.

We believe Mel Couvelier deserves your vote.

Inserted by Concerned Saanich Citizens Supporting Mel Couvelier.

Some Unusual Bulbs Worth Attempting

While buying the last of your familiar spring bulbs to plant right away, pick up a few less known, or even totally strange to your garden.

Several kinds fit into odd little corners so long as the soil is good, well drained and sunny.

Ixia is one which does well in gardens where winter soil does not remain saturated nor is likely to freeze. The small cormous roots sent up the spears of stiff grassy leaves early in spring. Spikes of flowers appear in late April, brilliantly colored, with six petalled, wide-open blossoms well spaced on the stem. They open from the bottom up like a miniature gladiolus.

Colors are orange, creamy yellow, rose, purple, white and clear yellow. All have contrasting eye coloring.

It is too bad that the related Ixolirion rarely blooms at the same time, yet perhaps its chine-blue flowers are more effective without the competition of other colors.

Ixolirion is somewhat similar to Ixia, but looser in habit, larger in bloom, and less number to a stem. I. ledebourii and I. pallasi are the two species seen. Both are blue, both are delightful late spring, early June flowers for sunlit, well drained spots.

Feathered Hyacinth is a common name given to Muscari cornosum plumosum (meaning 'with long hair, and plummy') a strange form of the little tightly clustered blue Muscari or Grape Hyacinth.

In place of tiny bell like flowers are long filaments, violet colored and feathery, and long lasting. They open by early summer, attracting much attention.

Ipheion is a gay little spring star flower in spite of enduring many name changes in the last 25 years. The narrow grey green leaves appear in a tuft early in the New Year if the weather is mild and before you think about spring you see the sweetly scented starry little flowers to greet you. They are white with a reflection of pale winter blue sky.

If you haven't grown the equally early Puschkinia libanotica, try a few. It too is white, shaded and striped with blue, darker than that of Ipheion (pronounced if-4-on).

These are all small bulbs. They need summer baking to ripen for growth the following year. A raised bed, or a series of sunny rock pockets are ideal so they may be left in the ground.

A little fertilizer after flowering, and one good watering while the leaves are still green will keep the bulbs going for several years. Those which produce long stems of flower like the Ixias and Ixolirions need those stems cut off when the flowers have faded to prevent seed formation and weakening of the bulbs, or corms.

Since we can succeed with plants which do not survive in other parts of Canada outdoors, there is always something of interest and garden value which we have never grown.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

That the experts live in a world quite different from the one in which ordinary mortals reside can be observed in today's deal. In it, the late Harry Harkavy, of Miami Beach, pointed out that he made a "mistake" of omission in his defence. I am reasonably certain that virtually all of our nation's non-expert players, if they were asked to point out Harkavy's mistake, would be unable to do so.

The deal arose in a national championship event. Harkavy was sitting West, and his partner, in the East seat, was Waldemar von Zedtwitz. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

Harkavy's opening lead of the spade four was captured by the board's king. At trick two the three of diamonds was led, and when East followed with the deuce, South inserted his eight-spot. Harkavy took the trick with the jack.

At trick three, West led his nine of clubs, and von Zedtwitz's king captured the trick. He played back a spade, the suit which Harkavy had led at the outset, and South's jack was taken by West's ace. All the defenders could make from here in was West's ace of clubs. Thus declarer fulfilled his contract, losing two clubs, one spade and one diamond.

TREMORS ROCK KITIMAT

TERRACE (CP) — What appears to have been a series of earth tremors struck the Terrace-Kitimat area early today.

Reports indicate the activity was limited to shaking windows and walls, accompanied in some cases by a loud crash. People were thrown from their beds but there have been no reports of injuries.

At the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria, a seismologist said the tremors registered from 4.5 to 5 on the Richter scale, "below the level of any serious damage."

Seller Curbs Set

OTTAWA (UPI) — Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray today announced amendments to the combines investigation act which offer more protection to consumers, including outlawing double ticketing and referral selling.

The changes represent the first stage in the government commitment to present a new competition policy. Following the recommendations from the food prices committee, the government separated the consumer aspects of the bill and brought them in first.

A second bill will follow later dealing with monopolies and mergers.

The new bill "strengthens and clarifies those sections of the present act dealing with misleading advertising. Specifically, it forbids the making of a misrepresentation to the public that is false or misleading in any material respect," a department statement said.

The general impression projected by the advertising could be considered, along with statements made by salesmen and any written statements going along with the product.

For the first time, provision is made for civil actions in the courts by anyone affected adversely by violations of the act.

The provision would allow the person to collect damages and costs.

Consumers will also receive added protection in the area of warranties and guarantees. The bill would make it an offence to make guarantees on performance or length of life of a product not based upon adequate testing.

Pyramid selling schemes which depend on each participant being able to recruit more participants, would be forbidden if there was any misrepresentation to new participants about the gains they "might reasonably be expected to receive."

Referral selling — the practice of offering buyers of a product a commission on further sales to persons whose names they supply — is banned completely by the bill.

Reds Kill Hijackers

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police stormed a Russian airliner on the tarmac of a Moscow airport and killed two of four young men attempting to hijack the plane to Sweden, government sources said Sunday.

The sources said the two other hijackers surrendered during the shootout which capped five hours of negotiations at the airport. One crewman and one of the 25 passengers were injured.

Soviet sources said the men threatened to kill all the passengers unless paid a ransom of between $500,000 to $1 million and allowed to fly in the jet to Sweden.

The attempted hijacking, the most spectacular in a series of aircraft seizures in the Soviet Union, took place Friday but did not become known until Sunday.

Threat of War Rumbles Again Over Mideast

Times News Services
The Middle East rumbled today with threats of a new war even as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger flew there on a mission of peace.

State-controlled Egyptian newspapers charged that Israel is planning "aggressive" actions against the Arabs and the semi-official Al Ahram said the situation was "explosive" along the ceasefire lines. Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said that Egypt had built up its troops to renew the war.

"Diplomatic reports in London said the Soviet Union had resupplied Egypt and Syria to prewar levels and had pledged more up-to-date weapons in the event of a new outbreak of hostilities. The reports said Russia also had sent in Soviet experts to oversee the new buildup.

Egyptian infantry supported by tanks carried out four attacks along the Suez Canal ceasefire line today but were beaten back, and Israeli military spokesmen reported in Tel Aviv. He said Egypt had fully deployed its troops to attack positions all along the Suez front.

Col. Nachman Karmi, the Israeli spokesman, said one of the Egyptian attacks today involved a series of infantry assaults that penetrated Israeli lines in the northern Sinai in six hours of fighting, and that tanks moved forward simultaneously before being driven back by Israeli fire.

It was the first time the 40,000-man Egyptian 2nd Army holding the northern sector of the Suez Canal line was involved since the ceasefire began 12 days ago. It carried out three separate attacks while the trapped 3rd Army to the south was involved in a minor clash between a patrol and Israeli troops.

Further Arab Oil Cutbacks

KUWAIT (AP) — The Arab oil countries announced new production cuts today in their oil offensive against supporters of Israel but said "friendly" countries will not be affected. It was not known whether the action will affect Canada.

The 10-member Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) announced production will be reduced this month by 25 per cent of the output in September and by five per cent of the November output in December.

But the announcement after a seven-hour meeting of the group's oil ministers said the 25-per-cent reduction will include the oil already cut off by the embargoes against the United States and the Netherlands. Since cuts in Arab oil production have reached more than four million barrels a day, or 20 per cent of the September production, it appeared that the new November cut actually will come to only five per cent, or one million barrels a day.

The cuts "shall not affect the share of those friendly countries that import oil from Arab countries," the statement said. "Their share will be based on the average of their imports for the first nine months of 1973."

The statement did not specify which countries were "friendly," but it was assumed this category includes France and Spain, which have been openly sympathetic with the Arab position against Israel.

Although what affect the latest action will have on Canada is unknown, the Saudi Arabian oil minister denied that his country has added Canada, South Africa and Trinidad to its embargo list as suggested by reports in Beirut and the U.S.

But the minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, added this warning: "If any other country re-exports to America or Holland what Saudi Arabia exports to it, then it will fall under our embargo."

Dutch Treat for Tots As Arab Oil Ban Hits

Times News Services
AMSTERDAM — The narrow cobble-stoned streets that meander alongside this city's network of canals ordinarily are choked with enough cars to keep an army of traffic cops working overtime. But Sunday most of Amsterdam's police could have taken the day off.

Under pressure of an oil boycott from the Arab countries, the Dutch government decreed a near total ban on Sunday driving. Since early Sunday morning the automobile — like a dinosaur fading suddenly into extinction — all but vanished from the streets and highways of Holland.

The children liked it best of all, flocking onto the near empty highways to play. Auto thieves, however, had their problems. Police said the only

Resignation Cry Mounts

Times News Services

An embattled President Nixon remained in seclusion in Key Biscayne, Fla., today, apparently considering how to counter growing demands for his resignation.

While spokesmen said repeatedly that Nixon "has absolutely no intention of resigning," one source acknowledged that the small official party here concentrated much of its weekend thinking on the leadership crisis that has prompted a rash of public suggestions that the president step down.

Of immediate concern was the problem of countering public skepticism about White House claims that no recordings were made of key Nixon conversations last year for which tapes had been subpoenaed.

Ray S. Cline, a senior official of the state department, is resigning after 31 years in government because he feels he cannot work effectively in an administration hobbled by the Watergate scandals.

The resignation, which was to be submitted today, constitutes the first by a high-level state department official that is directly attributable to the malaise in government growing out of the continuing series of domestic crises.

Demands that Nixon resign came from publications, and politicians, including Republican Senator Edward Brooke of Massachusetts.

Brooke was the first Republican senator to call openly for Nixon's resignation.

Meanwhile, in its first editorial in its 54-year history, Time magazine said that Nixon has "irredeemably lost... his ability to govern effectively" and should resign.

Across the U.S., some newspapers called editorially for his resignation, while others continued to support Nixon.

Among those calling for him to step down were the New York Times, and the Detroit News, Denver Post and Atlanta Journal, three newspapers that had supported Nixon in the past as had Time.

Brooke said he "reluctantly came to the conclusion" that Nixon must resign because there was "no question President."

Havoc After Freak Snow

Records for temperature and snowfall toppled Sunday as British Columbia reeled under an early freak snowstorm.

At Gonzales the temperature fell to 30 while it was 25 degrees at the Victoria International Airport — the lowest temperature ever registered for Nov. 4.

All 21 B.C. temperature reporting stations reported all-time lows.

A snowfall of 2.7 inches was recorded at Gonzales. The previous record for the earliest measurable snow was .3 inches that fell Nov. 6 in 1902.

Snow was still falling today at Kelsey Bay, one of the hardest hit areas on Vancouver Island, piling up on the 18 inches that caused traffic chaos on Sunday.

There were long line-ups for the Mill Bay ferry all day Sunday as the Malahat was out of action with six inches of snow at the top and wind-whipped ice patches.

An RCMP spokesman said today "10 to 12 cars were slithered all over the highway and we had to close it down for about an hour."

Malahat Checks

Road checks were held at each end of the Malahat, only cars with snowtires or chains being allowed to go through. The same restrictions apply today.

A snow slide at Sutton Pass near Tofino on Sunday piled up traffic jams until the road was cleared.

Gold River and Campbell River lay under 14 inches of snow and Nanaimo had a six-inch fall. Snow plow and sanding crews were out today.

The northern part of Saanich was described as "a snow belt" today by a Saanich works official.

"We had everything out Sunday," he said, "one grader and five sanding trucks."

The lousy "northeasterlies" that lashed Vancouver Island Saturday and Sunday plagued B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone crews with an over-all rash of emergencies.

Crews Working

Hydro crews were still working on Saturna, Pender and Salt Spring Islands today, having worked all through the night. Crews answered emergency calls all over the Greater Victoria area all through Sunday.

At the peak of the emergency 50 B.C. Telephone men were on the job installation crews being brought in to augment the trouble-shooting staff.

In spite of conditions, there were no serious traffic incidents although "fender-benders" kept police busy in many areas.

Tires in Demand

Local tire dealers were working round the clock today as drivers rushed to winterize their cars.

"It's a big, big day," said a Victoria Tire Ltd. spokesman, "We're busy as a bat."

Eric Bennett, manager of D and D Tires, said, "We were busy Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Today, of course, is panic day."

Woodward's tire department was "going like crazy," a spokesman said.

Dealers are anticipating shortages in many snow tire sizes.

An OK Tire spokesman said said this year's rush is worse than in previous years and shortages could become critical by the end of the week.

He said rubber companies had been unable to produce enough tires because rail strikes had held up supplies of raw materials.

Winds gusted up to 53 miles an hour at the peak of Saturday's storm — the first gale of the season — and still ranged as high as 31 on Sunday.

Warming conditions are expected to help clear island roads today although wet snow is still a possibility in the Greater Victoria area.

New York Firemen Vote to Strike

By The Canadian Press
New York City firemen voted today to begin a "total strike" at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday if a contract is not agreed upon by then.

The state National Guard was called up in Milwaukee, Wis., a city of 1.4 million, to replace firemen who have not come to work because of a labor dispute.

New York firemen were to have gone out at 9 a.m. today, in defiance of a state law prohibiting strikes by municipal employees. But when the strike deadline came, negotiations were still in progress and the firefighters came to work normally.

Later, at a meeting of the Uniformed Firefighters Association, the new strike deadline was noted.

In Britain, more than 100,000 workers have staged a 24-hour walkout.

Strikes also affected publication of two United States newspapers — the New York Daily News and the Washington Post.

In New York, Mayor John Lindsay joined contract negotiations involving mediators, city officials and leaders of the 10,900-member Uniformed Firefighters Association.

Firemen have demanded a $2,000 increase in their current base pay of $14,300 a year. An union official said he and other officials would ignore a judge's order to appear at a hearing today on an order to bar any walkout.

About 1,400 members of the New York Newspaper Guild went on strike against The Daily News.

The Washington Post, a morning newspaper, planned to publish an edition later in the day after a work stoppage by union printers prevented publication Saturday and Sunday.

All Trans World Airlines domestic flights were grounded by a flight attendant strike that began at midnight Sunday night. Meanwhile, a 15-day strike ended at International Harvester Co. facilities in 11 U.S. states.

Italian hospital doctors on a three-day country-wide strike left patients at 1,500 hospitals without assistance. They are protesting a request by hospital administrations to increase weekly working hours to 36 from 30.

HYDRO PACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 2,400 British Columbia Hydro workers have accepted a new contract offer of a 20 per cent wage increase spread over two years.

The workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, agreed to the settlement in a referendum ballot counted Saturday.

Final voting figures were not immediately available.

Officials of the local had recommended acceptance of a tentative agreement reached Oct. 12 between negotiators for the union and the provincial crown corporation.

BODY FOUND

A male body was recovered from the Inner Harbor by Victoria police this morning.

Identity of the man has not been released and no other details were available to press time.

Steel Layoffs Feared

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Many construction companies face bankruptcy if they are forced by pay higher prices for steel in the middle of a contract, British Columbia Construction Association president Wayne Farmer said today.

A lay-off of thousands of construction employees across the province was a possibility as well, Farmer said.

He said Western Canada Steel Company has refused to deliver steel to fulfil contracts with contractors unless there is a sharp increase in price.

"Our information is that the increase they want could cost as much as $100,000 for some projects already under way. Nobody can absorb costs like that."

Farmer agreed with officials of Western Canada Steel who said Friday there is no shortage of steel in B.C.

"The issue is the price and the sanctity of a contract," Farmer said.

He said there is no precedent for a company refusing to fulfil a contract in the construction industry.

Present price is 18 cents per pound, up over 100 per cent from 7 to 8 cents just over a year ago, Farmer said.

"The rumor is they want 28 cents a pound before they will deliver any more steel. We

Macdonald Widens Rift With Alta.

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — There was no cooling off in the Ottawa-Alberta oil battle over the weekend with Energy Minister Donald Macdonald widening the split by lobbing additional verbal blasts Sunday at Premier Peter Lougheed and his Progressive Conservative government in Edmonton.

Senator Donald Cameron, from Banff, Alberta, an Independent-Liberal in the Upper House, volunteered his services to try to bring about a reconciliation.

He spoke with Premier Lougheed late Friday urging that Alberta's government resume talks with Ottawa.

"I think it is an impossible situation with the Alberta government refusing to talk any more with the federal minister concerned. I told the premier I would well understand the frustrations felt by his ministers. I suggested that he deal directly with Prime Minister Trudeau.

"But at this stage the premier is very hostile to Ottawa. He told me that the Alberta government has now had its fingers burned twice by Macdonald and just doesn't trust him anymore. He was in no mood Friday to make any move towards re-establishing contact with Ottawa," said the senator in an interview Sunday.

Sen. Cameron said that information he has received from other sources, information that is borne out by reports coming out of Alberta, indicates that Alberta might be willing to resume negotiations if Macdonald was kept out of the picture.

The Alberta government would probably be willing to talk with Trudeau or with Finance Minister John Turner, according to word the senator has received. However, he made it clear that he did not get that from the premier.

The feud between Alberta and Ottawa reached the breaking point Friday. It followed the federal government's announcement Thursday that there would be a four-fold increase in the federal oil export tax.

Macdonald, Sunday, voiced

strong criticism of the Alberta government in a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national radio program. He lambasted the premier and Inter-governmental Affairs Minister Don Getty for breaking off negotiations.

Senator Cameron said he was shocked by Macdonald's words. No Alberta government minister would take part in the program.

"This is an impossible situation. It is unbelievable really that we have Alberta and Ottawa now firing verbal volleys at one another through the press and over the radio," said Cameron. "This is far too serious an energy situation to have the province and Ottawa not talking."

"There has to be a restoration of relations between the two. I know the premier personally and asked if there was anything I could do to help restore those relations. The premier was adamant that he felt they could not continue negotiating with the energy minister, and I don't blame him in a way," said Senator Cameron.

He pointed out that Macdonald keeps pointing to the needs of the millions of consumers in eastern Canada. He said the minister from Toronto conveniently overlooks the fact that for years the government at Ottawa has not been overly concerned about the millions of consumers in the west.

... MIDDLE EAST

The official Iraqi news agency predicted that Kissinger's tour would produce no tangible results and reported from Cairo, "There is a belief in the Egyptian capital that fighting between the Arab countries and Israel may be resumed at any moment."

Kissinger seemed jovial and relaxed as he boarded a plane for Morocco, first stop on a round-the-world tour that will take him to four Middle East Moslem capitals en route to China and Japan. He told newsmen "I am always optimistic" when asked if he thought his trip would produce a settlement.

Kissinger had carried out almost nonstop negotiations for the past four days with Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Syrian and Egyptian envoys. He was stopping off in Morocco, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia before continuing to China.

Mrs. Meir returned to Tel Aviv today from nearly a week in Washington and said some questions on U.S. policy in settling the Middle East conflict still were unanswered. Critics on the left and right have criticized her handling of the war and said Israel's military and political strategy failed to anticipate the conflict.

On arrival at Lod International Airport she said "both the answer we received and the questions which remained without answer on our side or without answers from their side" during her Washington consultations will be reported to the government for "conclusions and decisions." She is to address parliament on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, 11 Canadians

left Sunday for Cairo to determine what kind of support the UN Emergency Force will require.

The group was led by Brig.-Gen. D.S. Nicholson of Cornwall, Ont., who will report directly to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on the requirements of the force which is expected to number about 7,000 men. Canada is to contribute men to the force but it is not yet known how many Canadians will be involved.

The U.S. Air Force delivered 70 F-4s from Helsinki to Cairo Sunday for the UN peace-keeping force along the Suez canal, and U.S. planes were scheduled to take in 134 Irish soldiers, today and Tuesday. Soviet planes were reported flying another 300 F-4s to Cairo today or Tuesday, which would swell the force to about 1,500 men.

ident Nixon has lost his effectiveness as a leader of this country, mainly because he has lost the confidence of the people of this country.

"And I think therefore in the interest of this nation that he should step down, should tender his resignation," Brooke said.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, maintained its harsh new attitude toward Nixon Sunday with fresh comment censuring him for his behavior during the Middle East crisis and "fantastic inventions" about Russian intentions.

The Communist Party daily newspaper Pravda, in its weekly review of world affairs, stopped short of naming President Nixon but directly attacked his actions, including the recent full alert of U.S. armed forces.

In Washington, federal prosecutors said today that former White House counsel John Dean has admitted discovering and destroying materials from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt late in January after Hunt pleaded guilty to the Watergate bugging.

Richard Ben-Veniste, a lawyer for the Watergate special prosecution force, said Dean told government investigators that he shredded two of Hunt's notebooks and tossed a "pop-up address book" into a wastebasket.

Ben-Veniste said the materials which Dean said he did not read—consisted of the address book and two cloth-bound notebooks that Dean said he "assumed" related to the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Dean has testified publicly he turned over all the material from Hunt's safe to the FBI with the exception of "political dynamite" documents that he gave to then-acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray.

Attorney-General-designate William Saxbe today denied advocating destruction of the White House Watergate tapes if they proved to be incriminating.

He was quoted by the Hong Kong Standard on Aug. 23 as saying during a speech to the local chapter of the American Chamber of Commerce:

"I think the president is right on standing on his rights not to release the tapes. I personally wish I had never heard of the tapes. If they're incriminating, they should be destroyed, and I'm sure they will; but I think he's right in saying that a president cannot be horsed around in the courts."

Saxbe, nominated last week by President Nixon to head the justice department, issued this statement:

"If the question is, was I advocating any illegal activity in the Hong Kong speech, the answer obviously is no. In response to a question after the Hong Kong speech, I indicated that if there was illegal activity recorded on the tapes, I questioned whether such tapes would ever be forthcoming."

Meat Baggers Asthma Victims

CHICAGO (UPI) — A study released today indicated butchers and workers who wrap pre-cut, pre-packaged meats with plastic may be exposed to a new disease — "meat-wrappers asthma."

William N. Sokol of Yosef Aelony and Gilden N. Beall of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance, Calif., said the illness was triggered by fumes released when workers cut the plastic wrapper with a hot wire. The report was published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The study said the disease causes shortness of breath, coughing and wheezing and apparently disappears when the worker is not exposed to the fumes.

Three middle-aged women workers developed respiratory problems, the report said, when exposed to fumes of polyvinyl chloride cut with a hot wire. It was pointed out the three women were cigarette smokers and might have inhaled the fumes while smoking.

"These three cases reports strongly suggest that a causal relationship exists between the inhalation of plastic fumes and respiratory symptoms. In each instance the plastic film was polyvinyl chloride made by the same manufacturer. All patients had worked in similar areas and had no respiratory symptoms wrapping meat with other materials for six to ten years prior to the use of the polyvinyl chloride film," the study said.

"We do not know the frequency of this syndrome, but we suspect it is not rare," it added.

are trying to get confirmation on what price they are seeking.

That would represent an increase of more than 50 per cent.

Farmer said the construction association wanted information on the price sought for reasons of confirmation only.

"We don't intend to pay a higher price. We want our contracts fulfilled."

One course of action open to the association might be to refuse to pay a higher price and shut down all projects across the province, Farmer said.

The construction industry might have to take some kind of drastic action, even though thousands of workers would have to be laid off across the province, because the companies could not afford a 50 per cent increase in the price of steel.

Farmer said he planned to meet today with M.C.D. Hobbs, chairman of Western Canada Steel, in an effort to sort out the problem. He would meet later with officials of the provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, Hobbs today confirmed that Western Canada Steel is seeking a price increase but would not say how high it would go.

The company is the only steel rolling plant on the lower mainland and it sells to a number of distributors who in turn sell to contractors.

He said his company was under severe pressure to increase prices because of rising costs.

Meanwhile, he added, construction firms were running low on steel inventories and they could not buy steel from any other sources any cheaper than the projected prices in B.C.

Traditional offshore suppliers in Japan and western Europe have already raised steel prices because of rising costs and a world-wide shortage, Hobbs said.

Hobbs said Western Canada Steel would fulfil its commitments with its distributors but it had no direct dealings with the construction industry and was not involved in the contract controversy.

Farmer said Western Canada Steel, as the only local producer, was causing the problem by pushing for a dramatic price increase at this time.

Japanese Science Visit Set

A six-member Japanese science and technology mission will visit Victoria Nov. 15 during a 10-day visit to Canada which begins Tuesday.

Dr. Sus Tabata of the department of environment's marine sciences branch reports the mission is a follow-up to the Canadian science mission of which he was a member when it visited Japan in March 1972. The Canadian mission was headed by Alastair Gillespie, then minister of state for science and technology.

The Japanese mission, led by Shun Yasuo, science councillor of the Japanese science and technology agency, will also visit Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal.

Pressure Off

Officers and cadets of the RCSC Rainbow have raised $7,500 for their organization through a 20-mile walkathon held Oct. 21.

Major F. W. Conconi said today the cadets have been working under "critical financial pressure" for the past year and that pressure has now been relieved.

the weather

Temperatures were quite cold throughout B.C. overnight with record lows for the date being set at a number of stations. Skies were nearly clear across the central province but other areas were mostly overcast. Snow fell throughout the night in the southeastern interior while other southern areas had at least a few snowflurries. This cold unsettled weather will persist in some areas through Tuesday. Drier northeasterly winds have developed in mainland inlets and valleys on the south coast. Consequently, a clearing trend is now expected to continue on the lower mainland today.

A Women's Lib Victory —Then Why No Cheers?

Being some selected items from a man's personal diary:

Item: I've been waiting breathlessly for the celebration — a display of fireworks, perhaps, or at least a jubilant march to the legislature — but so far the ladies of the land have been strangely silent about their great victory.

Here it was, at last, provincial legislation clearing the way for women to work underground in the mines, a dramatic breakthrough to the complete equality sought by the liberationists, yet there was no rejoicing in the streets, not even a grateful press release from the ladies.

For those of us in the newspaper business constantly besieged by women demanding publicity for their cause, often accusing us of not giving them a fair shake, the lack of response was baffling.

When I approached our office liberationist and pointed out to her that now she may work down a mine, just like a man, I found her noncommittal.

"But, sweetie," I said (she hates to be called "sweetie") "don't you realize that all the restrictions have been removed, that you now have the complete right to dig for ore?"

"Up yours," she said, surely an odd remark for one savoring a victory.

Item: My wife quietly going insane this month with promises, promises, promises. When you switch houses there's just naturally a lot of things that require doing in the one to which you've switched. My wife made a long, neat list of these things. She consulted the advertisements. She settled down in orderly fashion to phone for the experts.

The results were instantaneous. Help was out there, just as advertised. In no time at all she had the assurances of a vast array of specialists that they'd be around to do the necessary. There was just one problem: They never came. Ever. One had the good grace to phone with a reason. The rest just never came.

The TV man who was to put up the aerial on Tuesday was not there on Tuesday. Hasn't been heard from since. The plumber, a Mr. Fixit type who said he'd have the leaking kitchen sink repaired "in a jiffy," did not. Hasn't shown yet. The carpenter who advertised "No job too small" accepted the assignment to replace the leaking eaves, but got to thinking about it, I guess, and decided the job was too small. So it went.

My wife has kept her temper magnificently, I must say, and only got vehement once. That involved the washer and dryer purchased from a large downtown department store. Though they were more expensive than other models, my wife agreed to pay a little more for the store's brand because it could be delivered immediately. The others, the salesman said, were still tied up by the rail strike. But the washer and dryer did not arrive immediately. Oh, my, no. It wasn't until my wife made a most uncharacteristically frate call that we got action.

Then they sent us two dryers.

Item: A curious letter-to-the-editor in the paper today, signed by one C. McCreath, suggesting that I have over-sold the idea of the Mincome to people 60 years or more and it demonstrates once more how little is known of that program.

Mr. McCreath writes, for example, that a person over 60 who is unemployed "is probably on welfare and receiving as much if not more than he could get via Mincome." That's simply not the case. Mincome provides from $50 to $60 more per month than the average welfare payment.

Mr. McCreath cites the case of a man making $2.50 per hour (though that will not be the minimum wage until June of next year) and says his "take-home pay is still more than double the Mincome payment." Again, not anywhere close to the true facts. The net income, assuming the man has a wife over the age of 60, would be almost identical.

Mr. McCreath says that the only persons in the 60-64 group who might turn to Mincome are "those who are faced with losing their jobs for reasons beyond their control." Not at all. As I wrote originally, Mincome offers retirement five years earlier than the norm for the man who dislikes his job, who can live on $100 a week with his other assets and cash, assuming — as I did throughout my explanation — that his wife is the same age.

It's not for everyone, I agree, but for a couple over 60 with a moderate amount of cash and the desire to enjoy an early retirement Mincome is well worth investigating.

Board Appeals Reinstatement

A board of reference decision reinstating two teachers who were fired last year will be appealed by Greater Victoria school board Wednesday in county court.

Bona MacMurchie and Evelyn Ball were dismissed by the school board on July 15, 1972, for "neglect of duty."

They appealed to a three-man provincial board of reference, which ruled on Oct. 4 they should be reinstated.

The school board immediately decided to appeal the decision, but its appeal has been delayed since the spring.

In the interim, both sides in the case appeared before the B.C. Court of Appeal where the school board asked that it be allowed to present new evidence at the appeal hearing.

The court of appeal decided that no new evidence would be allowed, and the appeal hearing would be confined to evidence presented before the board of reference.

The two teachers, Miss MacMurchie at Margaret Jenkins elementary and Miss Ball at Lampson Street elementary, were fired after being absent from their teaching duties for most of the 1971-72 school year.

Their lawyer, Lloyd MacKenzie, said they haven't worked since, as the school board refused to rehire them until its appeal is heard.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation is paying their legal costs.

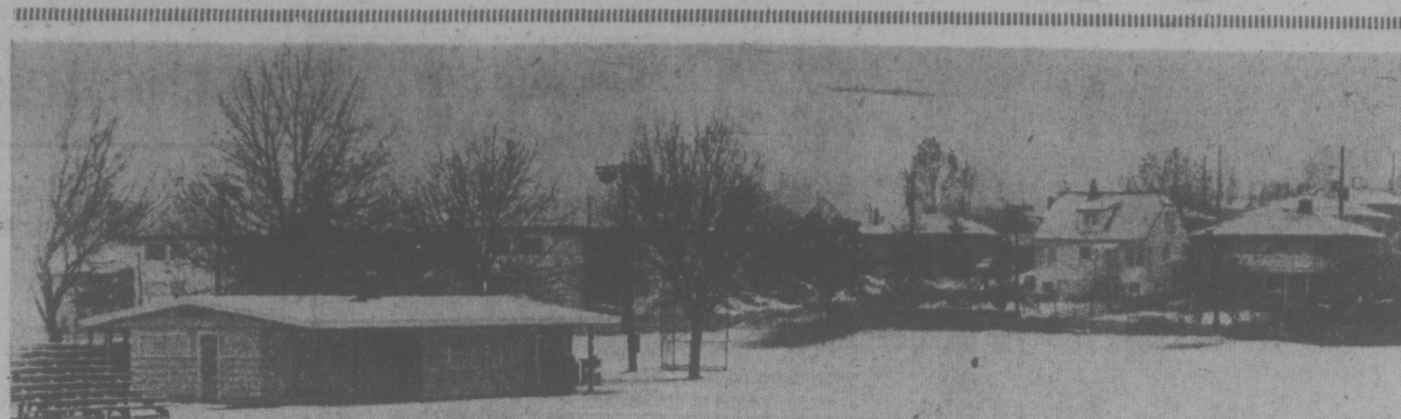

The board of reference said the two women, who live together, were ill with influenza for several weeks and were told by their doctor they should go to Arizona.

The two left for Phoenix on Nov. 9, 1971, and returned to Victoria in August, 1972.

Compulsory teacher membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation will give the BCTF too much power incumbent Saanich school board trustee Jack Armstrong said today.

Armstrong was commenting on amendments to the Public Schools Act introduced in the legislature Friday, which include the re-introduction of compulsory BCTF membership for teachers.

Compulsory membership, he said, means "teachers ac-

Mayfair Centre To Grow

A major expansion of Mayfair Shopping Centre will include a 3,800-square-foot addition to Woodward's food store.

Woodward president T. R. Farrell said the addition would be constructed to the front of the building.

Woodward's leases the building from Lang Investments.

The expansion would be part of a 15,000-square-foot enlargement of the Mayfair Centre.

Rene Savoie, manager of the centre, said a news conference would be called in mid-November to announce details of the expansion.

One of the changes involves roofing the mall that runs through the centre of the complex.

Land would be leased across Blanshard at Finlayson and Blanshard to provide parking for 120 cars. A span would be constructed by the shopping centre from the parking lot across Blanshard to the stores.

The land would be leased from the City of Victoria at about $20,000 per year.

In addition, another 100 parking spaces would be provided by decking a portion of the parking lot on the northern corner so it is almost level with Tolmie.

The Imperial gas station on Douglas would be phased out and landscaping and screening added, according to the Mayfair plan.

Waterfront Progress 'Inn' Step

Will a construction race begin on the Inner Harbor early next year, between the developers of two multi-million-dollar projects?

Both the proposed developments, the Reid Centre on Wharf Street and the CIL Properties Ltd. complex on the Bapco Paint site, have hotel, residential and commercial components.

And both are aiming for a construction start next January or February, with completion by late spring or early summer of 1975.

But spokesmen for the two organizations said today they don't consider they are involved in a race to get their establishments operational for the city's 1975 tourist season.

They pointed out that in neither of the two key fields, the hotel or residential business, will there be any real element of competition as in each case the premises will cater to a different clientele.

CIL president John D'Eath said the apartments provided in the $15 million project at Laurel Point will be in a much lower price range than those in developer J.A. Reid's site across the harbor.

He said he believes Reid's condominium suites, accommodated in one of that site's two curved towers, will be in the "luxury" bracket, possibly as high as $150,000 per suite.

But the reverse situation applies to the two hotel enterprises, D'Eath added.

Delta Hotels, the B.C. chain which would lease and operate CIL's hotel, caters to a "better quality" clientele than the Commonwealth Holiday Inns group which announced its partnership with Reid last week, he said.

D'Eath said the only "race" as far as he's concerned will be the effort to ensure the Laurel Point hotel is open for business by the early summer of 1975 at the latest.

It's not in the interests of any major hotel to open midway through a season, he noted, and in the event of real difficulties and delays he would rather sacrifice a full year than a few months.

Reid himself was not available for comment today, but one of his assistants, Bob Meadows, said he thought the two waterfront projects would complement each other rather than compete.

In any case, he said, "competition breeds business" and the Reid and CIL schemes opening at around the same time would benefit the local economy by attracting new business, especially conventions, to the city.

Reid has a land-use contract to build his Wharf Street complex, but as yet no building permit. In addition, he still has to satisfy city council as to his firm's financial capability of completing the entire project.

CIL has agreement in principle from council, but the next immediate obstacle to clear is provincial government approval for the necessary road closures. After that the draft bylaw for a land-use contract must be submitted to a public hearing.

Presuming both schemes go ahead as the developers have scheduled, the only question then remaining would appear to be whether any name confusion will surround the two hotels.

Gorge Dispute Unresolved

Mediation efforts have failed in a dispute between Gorge Road Hospital and the Hospital Employees Union, a union spokesman said today.

S. A. (Bill) Muir, the union's Victoria representative, said "efforts were in vain" at meetings arranged by mediation officer Charles Stewart last Thursday and Friday.

The union's 350 members — everyone in the hospital except registered nurses and para-medical employees — have voted 98.2 per cent in favor of strike action to back proposals for a first contract.

Issues in dispute, the union said, include discrimination against women, seniority, an apprenticeship program and right to opt for arbitration through a tribunal.

The union has not yet served strike notice. It has called special meetings Friday and Saturday to report on what has transpired.

Dayshift and graveyard shift workers meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Centre; afternoon shift workers meet Saturday at 1 a.m.

United Way Goal Hiked by Hikers

Boy Scouts are expected to contribute another $10,000 toward the Greater Victoria United Way's $680,000 goal.

Boy Scout executive director Jack Scrivener said today more than 90 per cent of 500 participants in Saturday's walkathon completed the 20-mile circuit, despite brisk winds and bitterly cold temperatures.

Scrivener based the $10,000 estimate on last year's figures when 300 walkers brought in $7,200. The money will be collected from numerous sponsors within the next few weeks.

First to return was Ray Richard, 24, of 11th Fort Victoria, who jogged across the finish line at 11:17 a.m.

He was followed at 12:10 by Dwayne Brideaux and Pat Kirk of 5th Cedar Hill Company.

Last to finish were five boys from the 2nd Garry Oak Pack which left almost two hours late. They finished at 6:30 p.m.

They had set off with six boys, but one dropped out because he was late for his piano lesson.

Two Dash To Safety

Two Esquimalt men fled to safety early Sunday when their apartment at 841 Esquimalt Rd. was gutted by fire.

Police said Robert Cockerton, 25, and John Picken, 29, both of suite 408, escaped from the building at 3:40 a.m. when the fire began in the living room. Suspected cause was a burning cigarette.

Police estimated the damage at $20,000. There were no injuries and investigation continues today.

'Too Much Power' Returned to BCTF

usually can be fired by the BCTF over our objections." The federation could take away a teacher's membership and thus prevent him from teaching, he said.

Membership in the BCTF had been compulsory for 25 years prior to 1971 when the Social Credit government removed the stipulation.

Armstrong said he didn't know a case during the previous compulsory membership period where a teacher had lost his job through withdrawal of his BCTF membership, but added, "it's always a danger."

If it did happen, he said, a teacher would have to appeal to Cabinet, and "thus is not likely to get them anywhere."

Between 98 and 99 per cent of the 24,000 B.C. teachers continued to join the federation during the two years it was not a requirement, according to BCTF president Jim MacFarlan.

Armstrong's opponent in the upcoming election for Saanich school board, Dr. Charles Doyle, said today he sees nothing wrong with compulsory membership in the BCTF.

"If 99 per cent think it's a good organization and they're willing to pay their dues," he said, "I feel that the other one per cent get all the benefits of that organization."

Rubymay Parrott, chairman of Saanich school board, said she sees compulsory membership in the BCTF as no different than compulsory membership by doctors in medical associations.

"I see this as a forward step as then again the teachers can police their own ranks," she said.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn said he thought the move by the provincial government was a reasonable one to make considering the overwhelming support the BCTF has among teachers.

Armstrong also said he had hoped that in changes in the Public Schools Act the government would have repealed section 53.

This section sets maximum honorariums that can be paid

school trustees, according to the number of students in the school district.

Saanich district trustees get paid $38 a month, he said.

"For some of our trustees that works out at 75 cents an hour," said Armstrong. He said school boards should have the power to set their own honorariums, just as municipal councils do.

Mrs. Parrott said she had hoped a requirement that money referendums get a 60 per cent vote would have been changed to 50 per cent.

TREMORS ROCK KITIMAT

TERRACE (CP) — What appears to have been a series of earth tremors struck the Terrace-Kitimat area early today.

Reports indicate the activity was limited to shaking windows and walls, accompanied in some cases by a loud crash. People were thrown from their beds but there have been no reports of injuries.

At the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria, a seismologist said the tremors registered from 4.5 to 5 on the Richter scale, "below the level of any serious damage."

Seller Curbs Set

OTTAWA (UPI) — Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray today announced amendments to the Consumer Protection Act which offer more protection to consumers, including outlawing double ticketing and referral selling.

The changes represent the first stage in the government commitment to present a new competition policy. Following the recommendations from the food prices committee, the government separated the consumer aspects of the bill and brought them in first.

A second bill will follow later dealing with monopolies and mergers.

The new bill "strengthens and clarifies those sections of the present act dealing with misleading advertising. Specifically, it forbids the making of a misrepresentation to the public that is false or misleading in any material respect," a department statement said.

The general impression projected by the advertising could be considered, along with statements made by salesmen and any written statements going along with the product.

For the first time, provision is made for civil actions in the courts by anyone affected adversely by violations of the act.

The provision would allow the person to collect damages and costs.

Consumers will also receive added protection in the area of warranties and guarantees. The bill would make it an offence to make guarantees on performance or length of life of a product not based upon adequate tests.

Pyramid selling schemes which depend on each participant being able to recruit more participants, would be forbidden if there was any misrepresentation to new participants about the gains they "might reasonably be expected to receive."

Referral selling — the practice of offering buyers of a product a commission on further sales to persons whose names they supply — is banned completely by the bill.

Reds Kill Hijackers

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police stormed a Russian airliner on the tarmac of a Moscow airport and killed two of four young men attempting to hijack the plane to Sweden, government sources said Sunday.

The sources said the two other hijackers surrendered during the shootout which capped five hours of negotiations at the airport. One crewman and one of the 25 passengers were injured.

Soviet sources said the men threatened to kill all the passengers unless paid a ransom of between $500,000 to $1 million and allowed to fly in the jet to Sweden.

The attempted hijacking, the most spectacular in a series of aircraft seizures in the Soviet Union, took place Friday but did not become known until Sunday.

Threat of War Rumbles Again Over Mideast

Times News Services
The Middle East rumbled today with threats of a new war even as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger flew there on a mission of peace.

State-controlled Egyptian newspapers charged that Israel is planning "aggressive" actions against the Arabs and the semi-official Al Ahran said the situation was "explosive" along the ceasefire lines. Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said that Egypt had built up its troops to renew the war.

Diplomatic reports in London said the Soviet Union had resupplied Egypt and Syria to prewar levels and had pledged more up-to-date weapons in the event of a new outbreak of hostilities. The reports said Russia also had sent in Soviet experts to oversee the new buildup.

Egyptian infantry supported by tanks carried out four attacks along the Suez Canal ceasefire zone today but were beaten back, an Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv. He said Egypt had fully deployed its troops to attack positions all along the Suez front.

Col. Nachman Karni, the Israeli spokesman, said one of the Egyptian attacks today involved a series of infantry assaults that penetrated Israeli lines in the northern Sinai in six hours of fighting, and that tanks moved forward simultaneously.

The tickets will cost $10. Second and third prizes — six drawings are expected before the 1976 summer Olympic Games in Montreal — will be $500,000 and $250,000 respectively.

Tickets will go on sale Dec. 5 with the first draw taking place April 15, 1974, before a country-wide television audience.

30 Held In Greek Protest

ATHENS (UPI) — Police arrested 30 persons Sunday in a bloody clash with demonstrators marching from a graveside memorial service for the late premier George Papandreu.

Thirty-two policemen and three demonstrators were injured.

A police spokesman said "about half" those arrested would stand trial on charges of failure to disperse, insulting authorities and resisting arrest.

He did not say whether the others would be tried or released.

The spokesman said five policemen were hospitalized, including one in serious condition with a concussion.

Witnesses said the clash began when police halted a crowd of several thousand persons marching from the cemetery toward the city centre near the ruins of the ancient temple of Zeus.

Witnesses said that when demonstrators began pelting police with stones, officers moved in with batons.

But Greek opposition leaders blamed the government for the clashes.

"I denounce the arrests that took place as the beginning of a new wave of persecution," said former premier Panayotis Kanellopoulos, who was present at the memorial service.

"Police could and should follow peaceful marchers and not confront them."

Further Arab Oil Cutbacks

KUWAIT (AP) — The Arab oil countries announced new production cuts today in their oil offensive against supporters of Israel but said "friendly" countries will not be affected. It was not known whether the action will affect Canada.

The 10-member Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) announced production will be reduced this month by 25 per cent of the output in September and by five per cent of the November output in December.

But the announcement after a seven-hour meeting of the group's oil ministers said the 25-per cent reduction will include the oil already cut off by the embargos against the United States and the Netherlands. Since cuts in Arab oil production have reached more than four million barrels a day, or 20 per cent of the September production, it appeared that the new November cut actually will come to only five per cent, or one million barrels a day.

The cuts "shall not affect the share of those friendly countries that import oil from Arab countries," the statement said. "Their share will be based on the average of their imports for the first nine months of 1973."

The statement did not specify which countries were "friendly," but it was assumed this category includes France and Spain, which have been openly sympathetic with the Arab position against Israel.

Although what affect the latest action will have on Canada is unknown, the Saudi Arabian oil minister denied that his country has added Canada, South Africa and Trinidad to its embargo list as suggested by reports in Beirut and the U.S.

But the minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, added this warning: "If any other country re-exports to America or Holland what Saudi Arabia exports to it, then it will fall under our embargo."

The standing of Britain is uncertain, and the Arabs

Dutch Treat for Tots As Arab Oil Ban Hits

Times News Services
AMSTERDAM — The narrow cobble-stoned streets that meander alongside this city's network of canals ordinarily are choked with enough cars to keep an army of traffic cops working overtime. But Sunday most of Amsterdam's police could have taken the day off.

Under pressure of an oil boycott from the Arab countries, the Dutch government decreed a near total ban on Sunday driving. Since early Sunday morning the automobile — like a dinosaur fading suddenly into extinction — all but vanished from the streets and highways of Holland.

The children liked it best of all, flocking onto the near empty highways to play. Auto thieves, however, had their problems. Police said the only

Resignation Cry Mounts

Times News Services

An embattled President Nixon remained in seclusion in Key Biscayne, Fla., today, apparently considering how to counter growing demands for his resignation.

While spokesmen said repeatedly that Nixon "has absolutely no intention of resigning," one source acknowledged that the small official party here concentrated much of its weekend thinking on the leadership crisis that has prompted a rash of public suggestions that the president step down.

Of immediate concern was the problem of countering public skepticism about White House claims that no recordings were made of key Nixon conversations last year for which tapes had been subpoenaed.

Ray S. Cline, a senior official of the state department, is resigning after 31 years in government because he feels he cannot work effectively in an administration hobbled by the Watergate scandals.

The resignation, which was to be submitted today, constitutes the first by a high-level state department official that is directly attributable to the malaise in government growing out of the continuing series of domestic crises.

Demands that Nixon resign came from publications, and politicians, including Republican Senator Edward Brooke of Massachusetts.

Brooke was the first Republican senator to call openly for Nixon's resignation.

Meanwhile, in its first editorial in its 50-year history, Time magazine said that Nixon has "irredeemably lost... his ability to govern effectively" and should resign.

Across the U.S., some news- called editorially for his resignation, while others continued to support Nixon.

Among those calling for him to step down were the New York Times, and the Detroit News, Denver Post and Atlanta Journal, three newspapers that had supported Nixon in the past as had Time.

Brooke said he "reluctantly came to the conclusion" that Nixon must resign because there was "no question Pres-

Havoc After Freak Snow

Records for temperature and snowfall toppled Sunday as British Columbia reeled under an early freak snowstorm.

At Gonzales the temperature fell to 30 while it was 25 degrees at the Victoria International Airport — the lowest temperature ever registered for Nov. 4.

All 21 B.C. temperature reporting stations reported all-time lows.

A snowfall of 2.7 inches was recorded at Gonzales. The previous record for the earliest measurable snow was .3 inches that fell Nov. 6 in 1902.

Snow was still falling today at Kelsey Bay, one of the hardest hit areas on Vancouver Island, piling up on the 18 inches that caused traffic chaos on Sunday.

There were long line-ups for the Mill Bay ferry all day Sunday as the Malahat was out of action with six inches of snow at the top and wind-whipped ice patches.

An RCMP spokesman said today "10 to 12 cars were slithered all over the highway and we had to close it down for about an hour."

Malahat Checks

Road checks were held at each end of the Malahat, only cars with snowtires or chains being allowed to go through. The same restrictions apply today.

A snow slide at Sutton Pass near Tofino on Sunday piled up traffic jams until the road was cleared.

Gold River and Campbell River lay under 14 inches of snow and Nanaimo had a six-inch fall. Snow plow and sanding crews were out today.

The northern part of Saanich was described as "a snow belt" today by a Saanich works official.

"We had everything out Sunday," he said, "one grader and five sanding trucks."

The lusty northeasterlies that lashed Vancouver Island Saturday and Sunday plagued B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone crews with an over-rash of emergencies.

Crews Working

Hydro crews were still working on Saturna, Pender and Salt Spring Islands today, having worked all through the night. Crews answered emergency calls all over the Greater Victoria area all through Sunday.

At the peak of the emergency 50 B.C. Telephone men were on the job installation crews being brought in to augment the trouble-shooting staff.

In spite of conditions, there were no serious traffic incidents although "fender-benders" kept police busy in many areas.

Tires in Demand

Local tire dealers were working round the clock today as drivers rushed to winterize their cars.

"It's a big, big day," said a Victoria Tire Ltd. spokesman, "We're busy as a bat."

Eric Bennett, manager of D and D Tires, said, "We were busy Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Today, of course, is panic day."

Woodward's tire department was "going like crazy," a spokesman said.

Dealers are anticipating shortages in many snow tire sizes.

An OK Tire spokesman said this year's rush is worse than in previous years and shortages could become critical by the end of the week.

He said rubber companies have been unable to produce enough tires because rail strikes had held up supplies of raw materials.

Winds gusted up to 53 miles an hour at the peak of Saturday's storm — the first gale of the season — and still ranged as high as 31 on Sunday.

Warming conditions are expected to help clear island roads today although wet snow is still a possibility in the Greater Victoria area.

New York Firemen Vote to Strike

By The Canadian Press

New York City firemen voted today to begin a "total strike" at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday if a contract is not agreed upon by then.

The state National Guard was called up in Milwaukee, Wis., a city of 1.4 million, to replace firemen who have not come to work because of a labor dispute.

New York firemen were to have gone out at 9 a.m. today, in defiance of a state law prohibiting strikes by municipal employees. But when the strike deadline came, negotiations were still in progress and the firefighters came to work normally.

Later, at a meeting of the Uniformed Firefighters Association, the new strike deadline was noted.

In Britain, more than 100,000 workers have staged a 24-hour walkout.

Strikes also affected publication of two United States newspapers — the New York Daily News and the Washington Post.

In New York, Mayor John Lindsay joined contract negotiations involving mediators, city officials and leaders of the 10,900-member Uniformed Firefighters Association.

Firemen have demanded a $2,000 increase in their current base pay of $14,300 a year. A union official said he and other officials would ignore a judge's order to appear at a hearing today on an order to bar any walkout.

About 1,400 members of the New York Newspaper Guild went on strike against The Daily News.

The Washington Post, a morning newspaper, planned to publish an edition later in the day after a work stoppage by union printers prevented publication Saturday and Sunday.

All Trans World Airlines domestic flights were grounded by a flight attendant strike that began at midnight Sunday night. Meanwhile, a 15-day strike ended at International Harvester Co. facilities in 11 U.S. states.

Italian hospital doctors on a three-day country-wide strike left patients at 1,500 hospitals without assistance. They are protesting a request by hospital administrations to increase weekly working hours to 36 from 30.

HYDRO PACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 2,400 British Columbia Hydro workers have accepted a new contract offer of a 20 per cent wage increase spread over two years.

The workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, agreed to the settlement in a referendum ballot counted Saturday.

Final voting figures were not immediately available.

Officials of the local had recommended acceptance of a tentative agreement reached Oct. 12 between negotiators for the union and the provincial crown corporation.

MALE BODY IN HARBOR

Victoria police are investigating the death of a man whose body was discovered floating in the Inner Harbor at the foot of Fort Street, shortly before 9 a.m. today.

Police refused to identify the man or say where he was last seen, pending notification of next of kin.

Victoria General Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walther, who examined the body, said it was badly decomposed and police indicated the man was last seen about the end of September.

"There was nothing on cursory examination to suggest any obvious foul play," said Walther.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said he is awaiting further details from police before deciding whether to order an inquest.

Police refused to say how far from the shore the body was found or who discovered it.

Steel Layoffs Feared

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Many construction companies face bankruptcy if they are forced by pay higher prices for steel in the middle of a contract, British Columbia Construction Association president Wayne Farmer said today.

A lay-off of thousands of construction employees across the province was a possibility as well, Farmer said.

He said Western Canada Steel Company has refused to deliver steel to fulfill contracts with contractors unless there is a sharp increase in price.

"Our information is that the increase they want could cost as much as $100,000 for some projects already under way. Nobody can absorb costs like that."

Farmer agreed with officials of Western Canada Steel who said Friday there is no shortage of steel in B.C.

"The issue is the price and the sanctity of a contract," Farmer said.

He said there is no precedent for a company refusing to fulfill a contract in the construction industry.

Present price is 18 cents per pound, up over 100 per cent from 7 to 8 cents just over a year ago, Farmer said.

"The rumor is they want 28 cents a pound before they will deliver any more steel. We
